THE MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE YEARBOOK - PUBLISHED
WITH the publication of this volume, Middlebury College approaches the conclusion of its one hundred and fortieth year. As it passes another milestone, looking forward to further expansion, physically and culturally, we pause to honor those who have been the spirit and vigor of its growth. We dedicate this volume to the ten men who have presided, since the dawning years of the last century, over an ideal—moving through obscurity and chaos to maturity and renown:

To the Presidents of Middlebury College

PAINTER HALL
CONCEIVED in 1798 by Timothy Dwight, Samuel Miller, Darius Matthews and Gamaliel Painter, Middlebury College enrolled its first student on November 5, 1800. Dedicated to the single purpose of affording a broad, liberal background to its students, the college has adhered to this principle throughout its one hundred and forty years of existence.

No attempt is to be made in this Preface to list the names of illustrious graduates or to trace a factual history of the growth of the college. A wilderness college, its history is probably much like other country colleges which are conceived by men for the purpose of pure education; and which advanced through the years usually without sufficient funds to cover the needs of an expanding institution.

Now under the guiding hand of Paul Dwight Moody, the college has experienced the rule of nine previous presidents. There is an essential need of mentioning the fine work which they have done in devoting many years of their lives in the furtherance of the principles, ideals and traditions of the college. The story of the founding and the subsequent century of struggle for existence is really the story of these presidents' terms in office. To them the college owes much.

And so this book is dedicated to them. It is an attempt to achieve something of the reality of the life at Middlebury as it is and has been lived, with the hope that it presents, to even a small degree, some feeling of the spirit and ideals that life imparts. In everyday reality this life is not too unlike that life found on a good many college campuses throughout the country. But in spirit and ideals Middlebury means much to its alumni and undergraduates in the way of democratic amicability, and the solidification of hopes and aspirations. Middlebury offers the inspiration of good fellowship and human understanding of which its physical self is the living and dominant symbol.

We who have tasted of this spirit; we who have felt its daily presence in mind and in body, go forth, we hope, the wiser for our experience here. For some of us this experience may have seemed directed toward a microscopic hodge-podge of scattered fact and fancy; soon, however, must we realize that it was a kaleidoscopic introduction to fields of which we have yet to realize the greater potentialities.

This Preface is also directed to Youth, not ourselves, but to the inspirations and the imagination of Youth. These ten presidents of whom we write were devoted to an opportunity, the opportunity that Youth has in a college such as Middlebury to develop sound ideas in a sound environment; the opportunity Youth has, in the accumulation of knowledge and experience, to develop integrity of character and intelligence through investigation of the arts and sciences.

First lodged in a building originally constructed for the Addison County Grammar School, and under the administration of Jeremiah Atwater, the college offered Greek, Latin and Mathematics together with a disciplinary system noted for its effectiveness. Based on the Yale method and the law of Moses, it left little for conjecture.

First student graduated in 1802, the need was felt for a permanent college campus, in order that the start of a building program could be made. After extensive campaign and debate, the question was finally settled by the townpeople whose contributions were in great part the means by which Painter Hall was constructed and completed in 1815, followed by Old Chapel in 1836.

Thus the college moved forward, advancing in stature until in the late 1830's it rivaled Harvard in reputation and size. But this normal progress was soon to be shattered. The peace which it had known was rent by strife and struggle. The chaotic history of the nineteenth century reflected its glow upon this secluded institution. Middlebury became embroiled in a struggle over its religious status and over two-thirds of the student enrollment departed. Despite its meager registration and deflated reputation; despite the ravages of the Civil War; despite its depleted treasury, fire and unsuccessful attempts to raise it from the academic mire, the college persisted. Heralded by the sage counsel of Ezra Brainerd who asserted, "My ideal of a college is one that insists on a complete symmetrical knowledge of the fundamental laws of all nature, a comprehensive survey of the best in all literature, and a general acquaintance with the great principles that should regulate all human conduct . . ." the college embarked, in 1885, upon a road which it still travels, the road of increased wealth in high reputation, standards of scholarship and endowment of physical plant.

The campus of the college today is the largest of any college in the world, with about 250 acres for the immediate campus buildings and athletic grounds bordering on Otter Creek, plus a mountain campus of some 15,000 acres which include some of the largest and most prominent mountains in the State of Vermont.

With a college possessing such a romantic and part-of-the-blood background as this, our theme has been to show its influence upon Youth. Ten men and more have struggled that it might continue to live, that it might continue to serve and inspire. Let not that dream, let not that effort or that reality perish.

Paul Dwight Moody, President

After graduating from Yale and studying in England and Scotland, President Paul D. Moody became a teacher in Mount Hermon School and Northfield Seminary, then he worked for the Fleming H. Revell Company, and the G. H. Doran Company, both of New York City. Later he was a minister at St. Johnsbury, Vermont, and during the war was Head Chaplain, A. E. F., in France. He has been President of Middlebury College since 1921.
Headed by Redfield Proctor of Proctor, Vermont, as President of the Corporation and Chairman of the Board, the Fellows of Middlebury College number twenty-four men with President Paul D. Moody the twenty-fifth member of the board.

Egbert C. Hadley of Southport, Connecticut, acts as Secretary of the Corporation, while J. J. Fritz of Middlebury serves as Assistant Secretary. George H. V. Allen of Fair Haven, Vermont, is Treasurer of the Corporation, with R. D. Hope of Middlebury acting in the capacity of Assistant Treasurer.

Six lawyers, two engineers, company presidents, vice-presidents, and managers, college professors, and others comprise the Board of Trustees who guide the policies of Middlebury College. Mr. Proctor and John E. Weeks are both ex-governors of Vermont.

Committees from the board perform such academic functions as studying campus problems and activities and aiding in the selection of scholarship recipients.

Among the names which are familiar to Middlebury students through the generosity of donors are those of Mr. Hadley, Hall P. McCullough of New York, Albert D. Mead of Providence, Carl A. Mead of New York, and Charles A. Munroe of New York.

In recent years additions have been made to the board by acting on nominations made by the alumni.
Besides succeeding Professor Burt A. Hazeltine as Dean of Men in 1938, Doctor Patterson is an Associate Professor of Economics.

A graduate of Middlebury College, Dean Eleanor S. Ross was Assistant Professor of English at Middlebury from 1915-16 and has been Dean of Women since 1915.

Wyman W. Parker
Librarian
Term of office:
September 1938 to —

Mr. Parker

When Egbert Starr died he left a legacy of $50,000 to be spent on the most pressing need of the College. There were two needs, a library and a science hall. A board meeting was called and on May 3, 1898, “on motion it was voted that the plans and designs for a library building be approved by this Board.”

Today the Library contains over 100,000 volumes and is designated as a depository library, receiving certain types of documents from the Federal Government. The stacks contain books on all subjects imaginable and in addition there is the Reference Room and the new book shelves. The Abernethy Wing contains a collection of rare and first editions of American literature. The Vermont Room stores Middlebury’s and Vermont’s rare items, books, and government documents; art books and pictures are located in the lower East Wing in the Art Room. Probably most popular with the students is the Reading Room located upstairs in the West Wing. Here, in luxurious surroundings, students may find almost every type of book for recreational reading. Also here are found most of the current periodicals.
Known as the Huntley House to the students of Middlebury, the College Infirmary is located on South Main Street just off the campus.

This building lodges the nurse, Miss Sarah M. Jacobs, and her assistant, Miss Beatrice M. Lindgren. Miss Jacobs is a registered nurse and has been at Middlebury since 1938. Miss Lindgren, besides fulfilling her duties at the Infirmary, is also a Home Economics assistant.

Covered by the health fee which is paid by all students at the beginning of each year, service at the Huntley House is given free of charge to those requiring it. This health fee also entitles each student to fourteen days' hospitalization at Porter Hospital, which is fully equipped for the accommodation of any illness which may arise. For not very serious illnesses among the women at Middlebury, the Infirmary is used as a small hospital.

The Huntley House cooperates with the Physical Education department in teaching the student the importance of laying a sound physical foundation during the years of his college course.

"The Middlebury of today is probably best known nationally and internationally for its work in languages."

The construction of Le Chateau in 1923 was a landmark in French teaching. It symbolizes a new era of pedagogy. It incorporates the atmosphere, manners, and traditions of French life in such a way, that the students are living French, not merely learning it.

Languages

Twenty-seven
The first reference to French in the College curriculum was in 1828 when a statement was published in the catalogue offering private instruction “to all who wish to obtain a knowledge of the Hebrew, French, German, Spanish, and Italian languages.” An offering like this was rare in any college at this time. The above arrangement continued until 1832 when all languages other than French and Hebrew were dropped from the list of extra studies. French remained during the next decade as a regular study.

But even before this time (1828) study in French had been available to Middlebury College students, for there was started in the town in 1822, a French School, independent of the College but open to College students. This school was probably the result of the proximity of Middlebury to Canada and a French speaking people.

From 1828 through the rest of the century French was taught intermittently under various titles and with varying degrees of responsiveness. The department was not officially established until 1909 when Duane L. Robinson was chairman. With the exception of several periods when it was included in other departments instruction has been carried on continuously in this department.

At the present time the course is headed by Professor Stephen A. Freeman; assistants are Associate Professor Albert Ranty, Associate Professor Claude L. Bourcier, Assistant Professor Lea Binand, and Madame Bruno.

La Maison Français, first college house in America where the speaking of French only was permitted, opened in 1920. Le Château, a large, French-architected building was opened by the College in 1925.
In the early and middle 1800's English as literature was subordinated to English as rhetoric. For a short time after 1838 English was combined with education under Professor John Hough and during the decade of the '50's An Analysis of Paradise Lost, a required freshman course, and the Analysis of American and British Orators and Poets were offered on the curriculum.

However, during these early years, Rhetoric was chiefly stressed. Juniors and seniors delivered orations in chapel on Saturday mornings, while freshmen and sophomores were required to do work in declamation. Composition work alternated with this oral work, and English literature was also studied.

The department was listed under the heading of Modern Languages from 1887-1895 and Language and Literature from 1895-1908. After 1908 the term department was used in a stricter sense and since that time the department has grown rapidly, increasing the number of courses offered as the number of students majoring in English increased.

At present the department contains seven men. Professor Beers has the Anglo-Saxon period and the nineteenth century for his field, while Professor Cady teaches courses of the Renaissance, Elizabethan, and Puritan periods. Associate Professor Harry G. Owen teaches courses in Literary Criticism and Browning. Assistant Professor Perley C. Perkins specializes in the novel, while Assistant Professor Richard L. Brown has the neoclassic period and composition work for his field. Assistant Professor Robert Davis has given courses in Bible this year, and Mr. Justin V. Emerson gives courses in composition and the History of English Literature.

Dating back to 1828 when it was first introduced into the College curriculum, Spanish was one of the first modern languages taught at Middlebury.

Despite its early introduction, however, it was not until 1919 that it was established as a separate department. During this time it was contained in the curriculum intermittently, sometimes under the heading of Spanish, and sometimes it was noted under the department of Romance Languages.

Due to the importance of Latin-American relations, Spanish is now a popular subject.

Professor Juan A. Centeno now heads the department and assisting him is Assistant Professor Rose E. Martin. During the first semester of the year 1938-1939 Jorge Guillen, the famous Spanish poet, was Professor of Spanish at Middlebury in the absence of Professor Centeno.

American Literature

One of the few colleges in the country to segregate an American Literature course from the regular English course, Middlebury presents an entirely separate American Literature department headed by Professor Reginald L. Cook, Chairman since 1929, and assisted by Mr. George W. Allen.

Before actual separation two courses, Analysis of American Orators and Critiques of British and American Classics, were introduced in 1848. Then the Analysis of American and British Orators and Poets supplanted these studies and was continued until 1868.

Today the course is a popular major at Middlebury and includes such subjects as American Literature Survey, The American Novel, Contemporary American Poetry, The American Short Story, and Special Research Courses in Emerson, and Thoreau.
Classical Languages

Greek and Latin date from the founding of Middlebury. In the 1800's they were a major part of the College curriculum, accounting for approximately one-third of the courses each undergraduate took.

Up until the turn of the century Greek was a required course, while Latin was necessary for a B.A. degree until 1936. An introductory course in Greek, however, was not offered until 1909.

The greatest loss to the classical department in recent years was the death of Dr. William S. Burrage in January, 1939.

At present Professor Alfred M. Dame teaches the courses in Greek while Professor Raymond H. White and Professor Dame handle the work of the Latin department. Professor White was on leave the first semester of this year with Mr. James R. Naiden taking his place.

Presenting excellent background for any of the languages, literatures, and sciences, and itself an interesting major, German was the first modern language introduced at Middlebury.

Taught as early as 1821, when it was one of the very few electives, it has never been dropped from the curriculum, although it has never been made a required subject. The department itself was founded in 1908 and Professor Everett Skillings has been the chairman ever since with the exception of the period from 1921-1923. At the present time he is assisted by Associate Professor Werner Neuse.

Through the efforts of Professor Skillings the German Club has come into existence and today consists of over twenty-five members. Before the present European conflict the exchange of a student was often done with the home of the mother tongue.
Drama and Public Speaking

Dramatics at Middlebury College, in keeping with the traditions of liberal art colleges, is a regular course on the student curriculum, whereby students owning to a propensity for the legitimate stage may gain practical experience in this direction. Three-quarters of the students taking such a course desire to act before the footlights, but only one-quarter, or less, is endowed with natural ability for acting. Therefore, the students are delegated by Professor Goodreds and his assistants to various committees, suiting their abilities. These committees include makeup, costumes, electricians, properties, house and programs, scenery, and student direction.

All these aspects of play production are studied, but as laboratory work in Chemistry or Physics, theories and book learning are put to test by actual production of plays throughout the scholastic year, and expenses of production are covered by the sale of Playhouse tickets to the student body. Thus, Dramatics at Middlebury is a source of entertainment as well as work. The direction of these plays, though under the guidance of Professor Goodreds, is otherwise entirely in the hands of seniors majoring in Dramatics.

The play chosen for the annual Thanksgiving Day presentation was Thornton Wilder’s “Our Town,” a popular Broadway production, which was cast in the Playhouse without the usual scenic effects. A stage manager described both the scenes and the action as the actors carried off their parts to excellent advantage by clever pantomime and back-stage devices. Its great success can be attributed to the fact that it appealed to the imagination of the audience and entranced one and all by its novelty. Originality is only too scarce these days. The leading roles were taken by Peg Waller and Talbott Hamlin, while Arthur Jamieson was convincing as the scenery and action, or stage manager.

For something different the Dramatics department chose for its next presentation a light operetta by Gilbert and Sullivan, “The Sorcerer.” Again there was a huge success, and it is doubtful whether the Carnival audience had suspected that so many fine voices, tenor, baritone, and soprano, existed in Middlebury, and in the Drama department, no less. Perhaps the shining interior of the new Middlebury High School gymnasium served to enhance the appreciation of this holiday audience. Nevertheless, the plot allowed for plenty of music, and such was delivered by the voices of Charles Kitchell, Walter Knight, Jessie Matthew, and Doris Wolff.

Preceding the spring recess, six Seniors presented their three one-act plays, which they selected, cast,
Drama and Public Speaking

and directed, and if such may be expressed, these Seniors certainly won their letters with fine performances. Margaret Heald and Hazel Phelps chose to present "Madness in Triple Time," which dealt in triplets and, therefore, mistaken identities. The triplets, Jane Appleton, Dorothy Hood, and Ruth Heig, were as much alike as non-relationship would permit. Lord Dunsany contributed "Golden Doom" for the next choice by Clare Lull and Ray Kiely, and this brought a few men into the cast, which included Edward Morse, Walter Berger, Talbott Hamlin, Marshall Eakeley, Lenore Wolff, Robert Fulton, and others. Mildred Falkenbury and Senatro LaBella directed the third play, Noel Coward's "Hands Across the Sea," cast mostly from the two undergraduate classes. Joy Ewing, John Heck, and Robert deVeer turned in convincing performances as principals in a hilarious military setting.

So, all in all, the Middlebury drama season was highly successful.

Most of the work is accomplished in the College Playhouse, which was converted from a church for this purpose some years ago. Of late, the Playhouse has been used for movie revivals to study improvement in motion picture technique. The latest movie presentation was "Cavalcade."
Faced with an ever increasing enrollment and a proportionate demand for courses concerned with the Natural Sciences, Middlebury Alumni and the General Education Board contributed funds for the construction of the Chemistry Building. The structure was completed in 1913 and it provides chemistry and biochemistry laboratories and lecture rooms for other departments in the Natural Science Division.
THE CHEMISTRY BUILDING

Natural Sciences
Most extensive of Middlebury’s sciences is the department of Chemistry which offers twelve courses and special research to the students of the College.

Professor P. Conant Voter heads the department and he is assisted by Assistant Professor John F. Haller, Assistant Professor Ennis B. Womack, Mr. Brown, Mr. Rosenberg, and Mr. Harnest. These men comprise the staff which conducts the lectures and the work of the various laboratories.

Courses in Chemistry have been offered since the earliest days of the College, but it was not until 1894 that the department was officially established. There have been only two chairmen of the department since its foundation. The first was Professor William W. McGilton who was chairman upon its establishment and who held this position until 1919. At this time Professor Voter took over his duties and has held them ever since.

In 1806 Frederick Hall, then professor of what was known as Natural Philosophy, taught the Chemistry courses. From 1882 to 1894 Professor Henry M. Seeley headed the work in the department of Chemistry and Natural History and even before this he had taught Chemistry courses twenty-one years.

After the establishment of the Chemistry course a separate department of “Household Chemistry in the Women’s College” was founded under Chauncey A. Lyford. Mr. Lyford taught Chemistry of Foods and Nutrition.

Subjects taught today include such courses as General Chemistry, Qualitative Analysis and Introductory Physical Chemistry, Organic Chemistry, Quantitative Analysis, Biological Chemistry, Industrial Chemistry, and advanced courses along these same lines. The courses offered form a good background for almost any phase of the chemical world.
More of a natural science than any other, the science of Biology evolved from several separate courses given in natural history and science. At Middlebury, Natural Philosophy originally covered what Biology was offered by the College in the early days, but later courses were offered in Physiology, Botany, Anatomy, and Principles of Zoology.

From 1882 to 1894 the department was known as Chemistry and Natural History and included such works as Botany, Physiology, Zoology, Geology, Mineralogy, and Paleontology. From 1894 to 1908 the department became known as Natural History and it covered much the same work as is enumerated above, with the exception of Chemistry which was itself an organized, separate department.

The Biology department was officially founded in 1908 when Edward A. Burt was chairman. Other past chairmen have been Avery E. Lambert, Howard E. Hamlin, and Owen W. Mills. Today the head of the department is Professor Samuel E. Longwell. He is aided by Assistant Professor Charles D. Howell and Assistant Professor Rex N. Webster.

Mr. Longwell received his A.B. degree from Bates and his Ph.D. from Brown. Since then he has been a Professor of Biology at Clark, Worcester, Massachusetts. On his sabbatical leaves he traveled to such places as Australia, New Zealand, and the Hawaiian Islands.

Courses given at the present time in this department include studies in General Biology, Anatomy, Physiology of Plants, Physiology, Bacteriology, Genetics, Embryology, and Histology. Also special research courses are given to those advanced students who wish to do special work.

The Biology department is located in Warner Science Hall where it maintains laboratories.
A course far different from the other activities of college life, the Home Economics department offers modern and varied courses to the women of Middlebury.

Established in 1911 when Miss Harriet D. Gerould was chairman, the department has grown rapidly and courses have changed greatly, probably influenced by the progress of physical and chemical sciences.

Chairman since 1924, Professor Clara B. Knapp is head of the department today and is also the Homestead house director. Assisting Professor Knapp are Assistant Professor Ida V. Gibson, Jewett-Wilcox house director, Miss Mary N. Bowes, assistant dietitian, and Miss Beatrice M. Lindgren.

Since 1922 a home management house has been operated by the department; at the present time this is the Homestead House.

Mathematics

One of the few sciences without a laboratory course, Mathematics was established at Middlebury as a department in 1882. However, during the period from 1895 to 1908 the department was noted as Mathematics and Astronomy and so it was necessary for reorganization in 1908.

Until 1918 at least one year of Mathematics was required of all students before they could graduate. After that time it was made elective to students training for a B.A. degree, and since 1936, when the B.S. degree was done away with, students can graduate with no mathematics at all.

Professor Llewellyn R. Perkins is head of the department at the present time. He is assisted by Professor Burt A. Hazeltine, Associate Professor John G. Bowker, and Associate Professor Ellen E. Wiley. Nine courses are offered in the department.
The science of Physics has been present in the scholastic curriculum of Middlebury ever since the founding of the College.

The work in the Physics department was originally carried on under the title of Natural Philosophy and was very closely associated with other laboratory sciences. Many courses with various titles were given in this department during the early days of the College, but it was not until later that the courses were combined.

In 1807 the Physical laboratory was first started. This was done by Frederick Hall who secured from Europe apparatus which was used as the basis for the laboratory. At the present time this laboratory is modern and well equipped. Laboratory work is now required in all courses including General Physics, an introduction which took place only this year.

Physics

With the great granite quarries and other abundant geology and geography natural resources so close to home, the Geology and Geography courses are regularly supplemented with many interesting field trips and laboratory work.

This department was at first two separate ones, but in 1925 the department was officially founded and Professor Phelps N. Swett was made chairman. Professor Swett is now assisted by Associate Professor Bruno M. Schmidt.

In early days geology work was carried on under the title of Natural Philosophy, but no courses were given in geography for all entering students were expected to be thoroughly acquainted with it. However, during most of the 1800's these two courses became regular subjects, and they soon grew very popular.

Warner Science Hall

Warner Science Hall was completed in 1901, the gift of Ezra J. Warner, class of 1861, in memory of the donor's father. The building was designed originally as the home of the physics, biology, and chemistry departments. Warner Hemicycle, once used as a college auditorium, is the scene of many lectures of the Social Science Courses.
Economics

Economics as a separate field of study for colleges evolved slowly over a period of over two hundred years and parallels, to a certain extent, the rise and growth of the industrial and political organizations of a society which is now contemporary.

Not considered in itself an important enough subject to rate a department of its own, in the early days of the College the course was shifted about from department to department and emphasis upon it varied with the period and the interest of the professors. It was placed with Ethics and Political History, with Constitutional and International Law, with Civics and Economics, with History and Political Science, and with Economics and Social Science.

In 1915, when John A. Morgan was chairman, the department was officially established. Past chairmen include Stewart MacDonald, Floyd N. House, and Charles F. Abbott. The present head of the department is Professor Harry M. Fife, Associate Professor Paul Rusby, Associate Professor James S. Prentice, and Associate Professor John H. Patterson assisting.

Professor Fife received his B.A. degree from McGill; his M.A. from Harvard. After this he was an instructor at Chicago and a professor at McGill. He has been at Middlebury since 1924.

It was during the World War when the whole world was in such a chaos that Economics started to gain the interest which it now holds. Attention was then drawn to the subject and it has grown until it has become a principal subject in any college. Its growth and development into one of the major departments at Middlebury has come about largely during the chairmanship of Professor Fife.
Established in 1882, Philosophy was, until recent years, a required subject at Middlebury and the backbone of its curriculum. From 1882-1886 there was a Philosophy department, also Ethics and Political Science. From 1886-1890 there were separate departments of Psychology and Ethics. From 1890-1891 the department was known as Mental and Moral Science and the following year Philosophy was restored as the official name of the department. Ethics continued as a requirement for juniors until 1911. Logic for sophomores until 1913.

Today twelve courses are offered in this department, which is conducted by Assistant Professor Charles H. Kaiser and Assistant Professor John T. Andrews. Professor Vernon C. Harrington headed the Philosophy department until the end of the last academic year.

Probably one of the most fascinating and intriguing courses set forth in any college curriculum, Education and Psychology has been a regularly established department at Middlebury since 1926 when Mr. Frank E. Howard was chairman.

Before this, courses were given haphazardly under various titles and with varying degrees of emphasis, 1838 being the date of the earliest record of Education receiving any academic importance. Out of necessity it soon grew, however, and in 1908 a grant of $6,000 annually by the State of Vermont provided for the establishment of a department of Pedagogy for the training of high school teachers.

At the present time Professor Frank E. Howard is chairman; assisting him are Professor Charles A. Adams and Assistant Professor John T. Andrews.

Education and Psychology

Mr. Adams, Mr. Howard
With a campus spreading over 15,000 acres and with excellent facilities for every type of sport, the women at Middlebury are almost as athletic as the men.

Their department of Physical Education was founded in 1922. Miss Marion C. Young was chairman from that time until last year when she was tragically killed in an automobile accident. Miss Young was responsible for the great activity and interest in women's sports and introduced many new fields for them to participate in. Today the staff is made up of Associate Professor Mary S. Rosevear, Miss Ava M. Colgan, and Miss Fern Laking. Advanced courses in physical education are given to the women besides the required courses for entering students. The women have intramural competition and skiing interest is at its peak on the women's campus.

Physical Education—Women

Miss Laking, Miss Rosevear, Miss Colgan

In order to acquaint the student with the necessity of leading a well-rounded life, the department of Physical Education was established in 1915. Professor Arthur M. Brown has been the efficient head of the department almost from its foundation, taking over such duties in 1918.

The Physical Education department takes care of intramural sports between the eight fraternities and the neutral body and conducts a special course required of all freshmen. The aim of this freshman course is primarily to get the new student interested in some form of sport and to teach him the necessity of exercise.

Also given in this department are courses in the teaching of physical education, coaching, the methods of minor sports, and the administration of physical education and public recreation.
Contemporary Civilization

During the past few years colleges have been placing an increasing emphasis on the study of current affairs. At Middlebury this study grew out of the Sociology department and in 1936 the Contemporary Civilization department was established.

As a freshman course its aim is to give the student a general idea of the political, social, and economic trends of the world. Associate Professor Waldo H. Heinrichs, present head of the department, has made several recent tours of European countries, the one this past summer being of especially interesting nature.

In accordance with the department’s work, Miss Charlotte Moody has charge of outside reading. Miss Moody has had vast experience as a critic and has written for such magazines as Saturday Review of Literature, Harpers and The Story.

The department of Political Science, established in 1913, is comparatively young.

When Political Science was separated from the Economics department Mr. Charles F. Abbott became the first man in the new division. Mr. Ellsworth B. Cornwall, recent head of the department, is serving the State of Vermont and has, therefore, given up most of his duties at the College. The department is headed by Associate Professor Walter T. Bogart, assisted by Mr. Lyndford A. Lardner and Mr. Cornwall. Professor Bogart, graduate of U. C. L. A., taught at Stanford and has also been connected with several broad surveys on local government in the West. Mr. Lardner spent the past summer in Geneva as a member of the American Committee of League of Nations. As a result, this year a course in international government has been introduced.
Winning recognition as a separate department in 1908, the study of history was, up to that time, contained in related fields.

Political Science, Civics, Economics, and Law were the chief courses which required a background knowledge of history. During the first half of the last century various classical authors were read in the originals in connection with law study.

In 1842 a brief course in ancient and modern history was introduced but this proved short-lived. For several decades after 1855 Guizot's "History of Civilization" was the basis for historical study. During the latter part of the nineteenth century until 1908 history was taught under various headings.

Professor Allen M. Cline heads the department at present with Associate Professor J. Perley Davidson assisting.

Mr. History

Mr. Whiston, Mr. Davison, Mr. Cline, Mr. Prentice, Mr. White

Mr. Sholes

Sociology

Throughout the country social problems in almost every phase of life have been growing rapidly in the past decade. In order to cope with these social disorders special training is necessary and, as a result, interest in this field at Middlebury is very strong.

In earlier years sociological work was closely allied with the study of economics and political science, but under the chairmanship of Mr. Julius S. Kingsley, Sociology was added to the College curriculum as a separate department. This took place in 1925.

Mr. Kingsley remained chairman until 1935 when Professor Russell G. Sholes took over his duties. Professor Sholes, a graduate of Washington University, came to Middlebury as a man who had carried on extensive world-wide studies.
Music

Professor Lewis J. Hathaway has headed the Music department since 1916. The department itself was not established until 1913, with Professor Edward Royce as chairman.

The department comprised courses in Harmony, Musical Form, History of Music, Counterpoint, and practical courses when it was first founded.

Most popular of the additions to these basic courses has been the course in Music Appreciation, for which no technical knowledge is necessary.

At present Professor Hathaway, Assistant Professor H. Ward Bedford, Mr. Alan Carter and Mr. Dan P. Dickinson conduct the department. Mr. Carter, who conducts the Vermont Symphony Orchestra, and Mr. Dickinson were added to the department this year under a program of enlargement.

Fine Arts

Mr. Bedford, Mr. Hathaway, Mr. Dickinson, Mr. Carter

The Fine Arts department at Middlebury is comparatively new, and has always been quite small in relation to other departments of the College.

The department was established in 1913 and Associate Professor Harry G. Owen has been chairman since 1937. Assisting him at present are Professor Alfred M. Dame and Assistant Professor H. Ward Bedford. Professor Owen was on sabbatical leave the first half of this year.

With the new chairman in 1937 there were introduced three new courses: Greek Art, Roman Art, and Principles of Architectural Development. In the same year Modern Art replaced a course given since 1928 in Appreciation of Art.

At the present time courses are given in Modern Art, Greek Art, Roman Art, and Medieval Art.

Mr. Owen, Mr. Bedford, Mr. Dame

MEAD CHAPEL
It is difficult to tell about these Freshman men class officers, because they are chosen too early in their college careers, before they have proven their worth. There is the president, Assemblyman Ed Peach, tall, good-natured. Bill Engesser is the vice-president. He won his Freshman football numerals and expects to report at the Varsity football camp this fall. John Barmby, boasting high scholarship and industry, was elected secretary for these very qualities. The last, Vance Richardson, promises to fulfill his duties as treasurer of the class, but his big objective is a place on the Mountain Club Skyline.
Sticks down. The hockey field, and June Archibald and Georgia Childs are the “belles of the ball,” playing with an intelligent intensity. Outstanding for enthusiasm in forging their way to the top are Ruth De Long and Marion Thompson. Along the snowy surface skims Marion Thompson, rapidly showing pleasing results from the bite of the “skiing bug.” Meantime, Georgia Childs captains her volleyball team to hard-won victories in the gym. To these four people the Freshman class must look for guidance and inspiration. Forum, Spanish Club, Choir, W. A. A., and sports were sought by these energetic new-comers.
The spirit of the Class of ’43 is the unwritten epic of the generation. The support of the Class of ’43 is not limited to spirit only; an active participation in Varsity sports is in evidence in all activities. In Frosh cross country, fourteen Freshmen received numerals: Haines, Scott, Egbert, Backup, Spear, Wood, Lutz, Walsh, Jahoda, Rasmussen, Gagnier, McDonald, Roberts, and Smith. The scores of the meets, however, are hardly a fair estimate of the efforts of the Frosh. The score of the meet with Vermont State Aggies showed Midd at the long end of the score, Midd 40, Vermont Aggies 15. In the Triangle Meet with Dartmouth, McGill, and University of Vermont, Midd 57, McGill 48, and Dartmouth on top with 15. The final meet of the season with University of Vermont gave Midd a score of 40 and Vermont 15.

The Frosh football squad was one of the best seen at Midd in many a year, with a tough schedule to keep the boys on their toes. Shea, Zollner, Booth, Ericson, Kelley, Porter, Rossi, Adsit, Liehr, Tupper, Jones, Bernard, Brown, Colonna, Don Gale, Jefts, Poole, Whittlin earned numerals by participation in the tussles with Union Frosh, Kimball Union Academy, University of Vermont Frosh, and New York Military Academy, while Barmby and Vickers won their numerals for service on the managers’ berths. Scores of the games were: Midd 26, Union Frosh 6; Midd 0, Kimball Union Academy 0; Midd 0, University of Vermont Frosh 7; Midd 6, New York Military Academy 7. Considering the schedule, the neophytes made a fine showing under the captaincy of Dick Porter.

Board Track Relay presents Rasmussen and Scott as members of the squad.

The Frosh skiers made history for Midd. Morehouse, Byington, Stuart, Willits and Gale gave active support to the B team to supplement the squad with promising material. Incidentally, Gale won the Vermont Downhill Championship held at Stowe in January, and placed in the Dartmouth Carnival; Stuart placed in the New Hampshire Meet and also at Dartmouth.

Due to the scholastic standing of many of the Varsity hockey players, the support rendered by Lundrigan, Don Gale, Wooldridge, Turner, Small, Pierce, and Frawley of the Class of ’43 was more than welcome. All have seen service in Varsity games to form a much needed second line for the Midd squad.

In basketball, Lapham and Adsit have gleaned first-string berths on Coach Beck’s outfit to replace veterans of yesteryear.

"Firecracker"
The Class of 1943

Peach drew the support of the class for the presidency with an able group of Engesser as vice-president, Richardson as secretary, and Barmby as treasurer to guide the Frosh Class through the vicissitudes of the first year in College.

The rejuvenated Black Panthers owe their popularity to the parvenu talent of Thayer, Aldrich, Nims, and Pierce. With such “finds” in the Class of ’43, the Panthers are on the long road to fame.

The Freshman choir lived up to tradition by turning out an admirable group for the Christmas service in Mead Chapel; little worry for the near future as to who will keep up the long-established reputation of the Midd choir.

Mountain Club and Winter Carnival are naturally the prominent interests of the greater part of the Freshmen when they come to Middlebury. This year is no exception, for the membership of Frosh in the Mountain Club has far exceeded the anticipated enrollment. Besides being active in Mountain Club hikes, and tryouts for Skyline, the Freshmen did more than their part in making the Winter Carnival a success. Freshmen constituted the greater part of the assistants at the ski events and placed Walker on the Coronation Committee.
Kelley on the Klondike Rush Committee, Bird on the Publicity Committee. However, the multitude of Freshman men and women are the unsung heroes of the Carnival by the dint of their cooperation with the several committees and skiing events.

The Ides of March drew forth the annual Frosh Frolic on March 16 with a pirate setting accompanying the music of the Barbary Coast orchestra of Dartmouth College. Committee for the Frosh Frolic were: Richard McGarry and Lenore Wolff, co-chairmen; Colton Jones and Mary Bidwell, decorations; James Nourse and Denise Aubuchon, orchestra; Richard Porter and Constance Linde, programs; Peter Nikitas and Virginia Wynn, tickets; John Walsh and Nancy Cowgill, chaperons; Lewis Haines and Elizabeth von Thurn, publicity; Scott Eakeley and Eleanor Reier, refreshments; Peter Bohn, finance. The Frolic was held at the Middlebury Inn to facilitate the accommodation of the eighty couples attending.

The Campus fared well with turnouts from the Freshman Class with Margaret Bullock, Phyllis Dodds, Margaret Fiske, Lois Groben, Helen Haldt, Elaine Herron, Constance Linde, Louise Sanborne, Katherine Streit, Mary Whitman, Doris Wolff, Nancy Cowgill, Barbara Counsell, and Leave it to the Frosh for originality! This time for enhancing the entertainment at Carnival with a skating exhibition with Kedric Thayer, Charles Cotter, and Lois Groben taking the honors on the ice—another fine piece of work by the Freshmen in the interest of the College.

The Class of ’43 of The Women’s College isn’t to be left behind in athletics with a volleyball team tying the Juniors for second place in the tournament, and the field hockey, tennis, and basketball teams rendering a fine showing. Margaret Ferry and Dorothy Forsythe shared honors as captains of basketball; Georgia Childs, Marion Young, and Martha Newton, captains of volleyball; Virginia Wynn and Lenore Wolff as captains of field hockey. Besides placing in class competition with the upper classes, the Class of ’43 placed Anne Anthony on the All-Midd hockey team and Louise Wilkin on the All-Midd volleyball team. Donna Rogers was selected as the W. A. A. representative for the Class of '43, and Dorothy Forsythe as representative in the Judicial Council.

Now that the long anticipated women's ski team has materialized, it is only proper that a legacy for a star skier be drafted from the Class of '43. And far be it from that class to fall behind when the torch is cast them. Helen Roach, in this case, happens to be the answer to the skier's prayer with a berth on the women's ski team of Midd. Helen carried the laurels back to Midd from the New Hampshire Meet with a third place in the slalom and a shining medal as further proof of her skill on the staves.

Not to be forgotten is the much-contested Glamor Girl Contest of Midd in which the Freshmen placed their candidate in a strong position. The Freshmen present their candidate for the position of Glamor Girl of Midd: Elizabeth von Thurn.

The cherished traditions of Middlebury are to be kept intact; the Freshmen have not spurned the task of carrying the torch which was passed to them by a part of this very tradition. Condemnation is hardly the theme of the elegy to be sung commemorating the fine job done by the Frosh in keeping alive all that is dear to the heart of a Midd man or woman.

Class Officers

Cosgrove, Yeomans, Maxwell, W. Wood

This worthy group of class officers is headed by Bill Wood, who rose from his position as treasurer of his Freshman class. Lanky Bill is also ranked as one of Middlebury's finest hurdlers on the cinder track. In fact, all these men contribute their parts to campus life. Vice-president Maxwell wields a powerful racket for the tennis team, while Treasurer Ed Yeomans especially shines at first base. At the end of last baseball season he turned in the best Panther batting average. Secretary Ken Cosgrove, besides playing football and running the mile grind, can often be found studying engines for his course in C. A. A.
COMPETENT Alice Taylor lent her enthusiastic aid to a 1940 Carnival Committee, followed by valiant participation in the Badminton Tournament. She frequently employs her leisure moments in her capacity as a Kaleidoscope tryout. Hope Barton of the ski team, capably filled the position of an assistant to Carnival co-chairman, a post to which she was elected by Skyline, which board she also graces. Nancy Rindfusz, outstanding in the Freshman choir, voyaged safely into the Senior choir in the fall of 1939. Secretary Elinor Dickie lost no time in conquering Dean’s List. To keep in practice, she bends earnest attention upon the Women’s Forum.

The Class of 1942

Ushered in with overcast skies and a deluge of rain the Class of 1942 entered Middlebury College in September, 1938, inaugurating the 139th year of the institution.

During the orientation week which took place immediately upon their entering, the then Freshmen met their advisers and the faculty and were introduced to Acting Dean Patterson, who opened the activities of Freshman Week at the Playhouse. Following this the class registered, were given lectures on the use of the library, and after various social affairs, which were held inside due to the inclement weather, Freshman Week was concluded with an informal reception at the home of President Paul D. Moody. College officially opened on September 21 with President Moody’s chapel address, at which time the men of ‘42 donned their Freshman caps and wore such caps until Christmas vacation.

During that period of wearing Freshman caps many things happened to the Class of 1942.

The two fall sports for Freshmen, football and cross country, were organized and fairly successful seasons were encountered. The Freshman cross country team won one meet and lost two. Numeral men were Frederick R. Bates, Bailey Goodell, Marvin E. Holdredge, Chester E. Klein, Kenneth H. Lawrence, Earl J. Reddert, Robert J. Ricker, Howard A. Schlieder, and Peter J.

Stanlis. Outstanding among these Freshman harriers were Bill Goodell, Marv Holdredge, and Pete Stanlis, all of whom turned in good times over the Freshman course.

Despite the fact that the Freshman football team lost the three games that they played, their season was not a total loss. Numerous men on the team were Charles S. Beach, Robert W. Bredenburg, Edward E. Buttolph, Charles M. Clapper, Kenneth E. Cosgrove, James W. Darrow, Richard C. Davis, Edward J. Gignac, Edward Greenbaum, Stephen Kedmenec, William M. Miller, Carter W. Mott, John S. Prukop, John K. M. Ross, Charles L. Sanford, Anthony W. Wishinski, Edward H. Yeomans, John A. Young, and John W. Zydic.

In the middle of October the class officers were elected for the 1938-1939 year. In the Men's College the following were elected: President, Edward H. Yeomans; vice-president, Robert S. Maxwell; secretary, John A. Young; treasurer, A. Wilson Wood. In the Women's College and named in the same order as the men, the class officers were: Margaret E. Woods, Marjorie F. Hughes, Margaret Goodell, and Jane F. Giblin.

Immediately after the football season, fraternity and sorority rushing was completed in one short and intensive week. Hopes were shattered and dreams were made realities in this period of Greek-letter domination, but it ended in time for the class to go home for their first vacation.

Committee heads for the Frosh Frolic were named early in January. Co-chairmen for the event were Alice Taylor and James W. Darrow. Helping these heads were many committees who did an excellent job in preparing the dance. The Fenton Brothers orchestra was chosen to play and its music was one of the highlights of the evening. The dance was semi-formal, with no corsages and late permission for the women.

At the beginning of the second semester the Class of 1942 became eligible for Varsity sports. The three mid-winter sports, hockey, basketball, and skiing, were supplemented with various men of the Class of ’42.

Lettermen on the ski team, which was coached by Arthur Schlatter and which had a very successful season, were Edward J. Gignac, Dwight F. Smith, and Ira P. Townsend. Letters were not granted the Freshman hockey players, but those who saw a great deal of service were Alexander Alexander, Jr., Frederick R. Bates, John F. Bates, Richard C. Davis, Stanwood F. Johnson, Phillip W. Lees, Thomas F. Ripa, John K. M. Ross, and Anthony W. Wishinski. Much of the success of the hockey team was owed to these boys who backed up a few experienced men and balanced out a strong team. In basketball two men of the Class of '42 received letters. These men were William M. Miller and John W. Zydic and both of them saw a great deal of service throughout the season.

In the spring there were four more sports, tennis, golf, track, and baseball, in which the plebe class took part.

In the minor sport of tennis, letters were awarded to Alexander Alexander, Jr. and Robert S. Maxwell, two men who played as regulars the entire season. Many men turned out for the minor sport of golf, but most of them were eliminated in the Round Robin Tournament. Those awarded letters were Richard C. Davis and Roger W. Howard.

The two major spring sports also saw many men of the Class of '42 participating. Awarded track letters were A. Wilson Wood and John W. Zydic and those first-year men seeing a large amount of service were Kenneth E. Cosgrove, Marvin E. Holdredge, Kenneth H. Lawrence, Philip W. Rifenberg, Howard A. Schlieder, and David K. Smith. These men were of great use to a track team which had been riddled by graduation.

The nation's pastime, baseball, is also a popular sport at Middlebury and the Class of '42 helped a great deal to make it so. Edward J. Gignac, John S. Prukop, and Edward H. Yeomans won Varsity letters in the sport and among those who saw active play were Kyle T. Brown, William M. Desmond, Lawrence A. Glazier, Gardner H. Johnson, Philip W. Mayo, Thomas F. Ripa, and Anthony W. Wishinski.

Those that I have mentioned are the more important things that the Class of 1942 did in their Freshman year, but they also had a choir, ran a P-rade, had a war with the Sophomores during Junior Week, and took an active part in the Mountain Club, College publications, language clubs, dramatics, women's athletics, and various other campus activities.

After a ten-week summer vacation 191 of the original number of 213 returned to Middlebury in September, 1939, to participate in the second year of their college career.

Class officers for this year, 1939-1940, were A. Wilson Wood, Robert S. Maxwell, Kenneth E. Cosgrove, and Edward H. Yeomans. For the Women's College they were Alice Taylor, Hope Barton, Elinor L. Dickie, and Nancy H. Rindfusz.

In Varsity football this year many men of the Class of '42 starred and several of them received letters. Those receiving letters were Charles M.

Also, Varsity cross country was helped by the Class of '42. Howard A. Schlieder and Peter J. Stanlis received their letters and Augustin A. Root saw active service.

The big social event of the autumn season and the only formal of the first semester was the Soph Hop conducted by the Class of 1942. Held on Thanksgiving eve, the co-chairmen of the event were James W. Darrow and D. Jane McGinnis. Assisting them as committee heads were Marjorie F. Hughes, Charles H. Kitchell, Jean E. MacDonald, June A. Perry, Augustin A. Root, Howard A. Schlieder, Raymond H. Squire, Barbara York, and William F. Youngs.

The Fenton Brothers were procured to play at the dance which lasted from 9 until 1:40. Decorations took the form of a large grape arbor, relative size being balloons for grapes. The dance was held in the McCullough Gymnasium. The orchestra was placed in an imaginative garden and the stage was transformed into a lounge.

The man with the broadest grin happens to be president of the Junior class. Yes, it is Jack Johnson, captain-elect of Midd's forthcoming football team, and to the left of him stands his best blocking back, Sam Bertuzzi, masquerading as the class vice-president. The two braced against the wind are the secretary and treasurer respectively. Dan Armstrong and Jack Nugent. Dan was highly responsible for the success of the Winter Carnival. Jack seemed to be a popular committee man this year, whenever there was work to be done, and during the winter he played a snappy game of basketball.
Harmony is certainly a motif of the administration of the Junior class if it can be judged by the class officers. Carol Hubbard, president, is a member of the College orchestra, while Vice-President Marie Stockmayer is well known for her ability as a pianist. Class Secretary Jessie Matthew possesses a fine contralto voice and has made many public appearances. This musical tradition is continued by Patricia MacDonald, treasurer, who sings with the Choral Society. Wide interests in other phases of college life as well, make these officers fitting representatives of the Class of 1941.

Senior Men

Class Officers

Leggett, Anderson, Profy, S. Moore

Orator, administrator, athlete, and musician; such is the versatility of our Senior men officers. They represent four different states in the Union . . . and four different fraternities on the Campus. The treasurer, Glenn Leggett, is a Chi Psi from Ohio. Bob Anderson, a K. D. R. living in New Jersey, slipped by Rutgers to come to Middlebury; and incidentally, Bob rules the Mountain Club with an iron hand. The president of this class is a Deke, Al Profy, who comes from Pennsylvania. However, it wouldn’t be right without a Vermonter, and the class secretary, Stan Moore of the Beta Kappa house, fulfills this requirement.
The executive body of the Senior class this year is made up of girls whose interests lie in varied fields of campus activities. The president is Phyllis Hubbard who also holds the office of secretary of the Social Committee. Louise Gove, who was class treasurer last year, is now vice-president. The secretary, Betty Bucher, has worked in the language clubs and on the business staff of the Campus, while Gerry Dansereau, treasurer, has divided her activities between athletics and musical organizations. All the officers have done their part in the very successful administration of the graduating class.

One Hundred Thirty-one
THE COLLEGE YEAR

In this section:

Forest Hall

All newcomers to Middlebury are awed by the spacious construction of Forest Hall. The suites of rooms, are incentives to study, while the lounges, living rooms, kitchenettes and the recreation room provide the bright atmosphere suitable for a social gathering. Doubtless, one of the finest women's dormitories in the country, the building points the way to the future and completed campus of the Women's College of Middlebury.

One Hundred Thirty-seven
Men's Dormitories

Painter, Starr, and Hepburn Halls, and the Weybridge House are the four men's dormitories at Middlebury College.

Painter Hall was the first to be built and its prematureness was due only to the plan of action and strategy of Gameliel Painter. He divided the town of Middlebury into an East and a West faction, each opposing the other in contributing to see where the College should be built. For four years the struggle waged between the factions, but finally the West branch won out and Storrs Hill was chosen over Chipman and Aqueduct Hills as the site of the new building.

Immediately stone was hauled to the site and Middlebury's citizens each contributed their share of lumber, nails, glass, hardware, and cartage. Thus Painter Hall was born. The building was completed in 1815 and in 1816 it was opened to Middlebury students; it was then called West College. Today it is the oldest college building in Vermont.

Starr Hall was the next of the dormitories to appear on the campus. The cornerstone for it was laid in 1860. This was the fourth building to be completed on the new college site.

On Christmas Day of 1864 Starr Hall was burned and was almost a complete loss, costing the College $25,000. The next year Starr Hall was reconstructed.

Situated off campus at the corner of Weybridge Street, the Weybridge House is a wooden building which dates back a great many years.

Most beautiful of these four buildings are Painter and Starr Halls with their simple, sturdy architecture and ivy-covered walls. They, with Old Chapel, compose Old Stone Row, the buildings basically forming Middlebury College.

The last dormitory completed on campus was Hepburn Hall in 1916, the same year as the New Chapel erected by ex-Governor John A. Mead. Hepburn Hall was given to the College, designed, and planned by Mr. A. Barton Hepburn, '71.
Women's Dormitories

When Joseph Battell, the greatest benefactor of the Women's College, chose the present site of the women's campus he also secured the Brainerd Lane farmhouse. In 1907 this house was presented to the Women's College and immediately work began on its remodeling. Since women had been admitted as early as 1883 there were now quite a few in attendance, so it was necessary to enlarge the building to serve the purpose of a combination dormitory and dining hall and it was completely remodeled in accordance with Vermont architectural standards. This was the first real women's dormitory to appear on the campus.

Also, in the year 1907, President John M. Thomas sent out an appeal for $50,000 for a new women's building. Dr. D. K. Pearsons of Chicago answered this with a letter which stated that he would give one dollar to every three that...
President Thomas collected. The result of this generous offer is Pearson's Hall which was opened in 1911 on the pasture land of the Brainerd Lane farm at the rear of Battell Cottage. This dormitory is large enough to accommodate sixty-two women and although originally a Senior dormitory, Pearson's has become the traditional home for Junior women.

Because of the growing importance of the French department and the national reputation of the French summer school, the College appropriated money for the construction of a building devoted solely to French and its development. Le Château is the living tribute of this cause. Constructed after the Pavillon Henri IV of the palace of Fontainebleau, the building is a typical French château and is decorated and furnished strictly in accordance with the French style, and students living there speak only French.

In 1936 Forest Hall, one of the most beautiful women's dormitories in the country, was built from the funds obtained from the sale of part of the large 30,000-acre mountain campus which had been donated to the College by Mr. Battell.
The building was designed by Dwight James Baum, nationally famous architect, and its limestone structure represents the best of New England tradition in architecture. Forest Hall is U-shaped and is divided into two wings, Forest East and West, each wing having its own dining hall and living rooms.

May Bolton, one of Middlebury's first women graduates, made the building now called Hillcrest her home during her college years. It was then a private home, but later it was sold to the College which added annexes and wings to accommodate the ever-increasing enrollment. At the present time the building is solely a Freshman dormitory, the original dining hall having been done away with to afford more space for the students.

Although Hillside is much smaller its purpose is exactly the same as Hillcrest's. A dormitory for the use of Freshmen only, Hillside has no dining hall and is purely a dormitory. It is situated on the road to Le Château and was procured by the College because of lack of funds to build a desired and necessary new women's dormitory.
The two women's dormitories which are situated off campus are run almost entirely by the women themselves. The Homestead, or the Home Management House, is a typical New England home which is used for practical work of the theory taught in the Home Economics department. Girls who are majoring in Home Economics must spend one semester here under the direction of Professor Clara B. Knapp. The girls have complete charge of the house, Professor Knapp merely supervises, and because of the amount of work they do, during the semester that the girls live here they are only required to take four courses at the College, the same credit being given for this work as for a regular semester course.

The other dormitory run entirely by the women is the Jewett-Wilcox House. This is a cooperative house and the building accommodates eleven students who share the housekeeping duties among themselves under the direction of Assistant Professor Ida V. Gibson of the Home Economics department. Girls living here are not given college credit for the work, it being optional with the student and run for the purpose of giving girls a chance to enjoy an economical year.
There are eight fraternities at Middlebury, but their influence on the men's student body is cooperative and friendly, rather than otherwise. They draw upon the resources and develop the potentialities of their members. Just as friction may arise between individuals, friction may occur between these fraternities; but where individuals would not, these fraternities have established a council for arbitration, the Interfraternity Council.

The Red Flag on Chapel Hill was a joke... no college is more democratic in action and tradition than Middlebury. The men and women of Middlebury College elect representative student government each year which deals with all problems not under the jurisdiction of the college regulations. Its function makes possible a closer relationship between the student body and faculty. Its function develops leadership and spirit of responsibility within the student body.
MEN'S STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSEMBLY

Government

One Hundred Sixty-three
Contrary to opinion, the Student Life Committee is not a disciplinary body, though occasionally it has found it necessary to act in other than its advisory capacity. The main function of the committee lies in establishing common grounds where the students of both Colleges and the faculty can meet and understand each other. The Student Life Committee lends a sympathetic rôle; they represent the faculty in a spirit of give-and-take with representatives of the student body.

The whole committee consists of the two deans, the president of the Undergraduate Association (George Lewin), president of the Student Union (Marjorie Burditt), and a faculty member who presides as chairman. The present chairman is Ennis B. Womack, Associate Professor in the Chemistry department.

This year the Student Life Committee sanctioned the new men’s constitution and decided that the debating coach, Professor Perkins, should plan Middlebury’s debating schedule, limiting the program to eighteen debates a year. Also they proposed that henceforth the Forest Recreation Hall was open to all and could not be reserved any evening by small groups. In all cases, the student sentiment is fully voiced by their two representatives.
The hidden power behind the athletic policies of Middlebury College is the Athletic Council, and it is a power. It supervises the raising of funds by the students for Varsity sweaters. Concerning this, a few years ago the Council relieved the "M" Club of the management of the gym dances because of inefficiency. It must approve the elections of captains and managers in all sports. It decides on questions of Varsity eligibility and disputed elections. It determines the recipients of varsity awards. The Director of Athletics, a member of the Athletic Council, is in charge of gate receipts, purchase of athletic equipment, upkeep of fields and buildings, and each September he must submit a properly audited report of all financial affairs, passing through his office the previous college year, to the Council for approval.

Besides the Director of Athletics, the Council consists of the captains of Varsity sports, five members of the faculty, selected by the trustees and president of Middlebury College, one alumnus, and the president of the Undergraduate Association. For convenience, a local alumnus is usually chosen, since meetings of the Council are held once a month. However, the president of the Council is privileged to call extraordinary meetings. Last year a student petition necessitated a special meeting; the Council thereby voted skiing a major sport.
Last year Middlebury College officials felt that the old student constitution was outmoded and inadequate for a growing institution; so they appointed two men, Edward E. Palmer '39 and Williams A. Onion '40, to modify and revise the constitution as they saw fit. Within five months these two men offered a completely new constitution which the student body readily accepted.

This new constitution provides for a president, elected each June. All regulations passed by the student assembly must meet the approval of the president before going into effect, and the assembly can override a presidential veto only by a three-fourths vote of all its members. Once a bill becomes a law the president is responsible for its enforcement. The president is provided with a cabinet which he may consult.

The assembly itself is a new innovation in student government at Middlebury. Elected representatives from districts or "living centers" form the assembly which possesses ordinary legislative powers, but which is far superior to the old Student Council. The assembly must meet once a month and it has the power to establish a students court at any time, may amend the constitution by a three-fourths vote, and cooperates with the Women's Student Government in making laws.
Organized in 1912 as an organization which would act as a consolidating force for the various phases of life in the Women’s College of Middlebury, the Student Union has become a powerful and efficient governing body. Made up of executive, legislative, and judicial councils whose members represent each of the extracurricular organizations on the women’s campus, government is maintained on a just and democratic basis.

Each girl entering the Freshman class automatically becomes a member of Student Union and comes under its jurisdiction. All students are given a chance to help make the laws and they, therefore, govern themselves. Monthly meetings are compulsory so that all will attend and each student is made to realize the importance of the body and the responsibilities that it entails.

The Union, as a whole, is a flexible institution. It was conceived as a government for and by the students and has remained as such. It takes its place as one of the most important parts of the Women’s College and has truly accomplished its designated purpose, “To further the spirit of unity among the women students at Middlebury, to coordinate and control the extracurricular activities of the women students; and to encourage high standards of cooperation in student self-government.”
As the name might imply, the Interfraternity Council is the fraternity governing machinery of the men's student body. By fostering good relations during fraternity rushing, the Council lessens any friction which might develop between the eight fraternities on the campus.

The Council, composed of a Junior and Senior from each fraternity, has been augmented to sixteen with the organization of a new fraternity, Sigma Alpha. The rules of the Council are enforced by its president, Patrick Vartuli of Alpha Sigma Phi, who holds in his hands the reins of a new constitution.

The Council feels that by adopting a constitution more liberal to the fraternities than the previous constitution, it has accomplished much toward furthering harmony on the campus. By establishing natural relations between fraternity men and rushers for the first time, the Council finds that there is less apt to be any illegal rushing. However, fines of fifty dollars for breaking rules as defined by the constitution are still imposed upon the fraternities. For instance, if the quota of fifteen pledges for each fraternity is exceeded, that fraternity violating the quota shall pay the Council fifty dollars for each additional pledge. The Council is endowed with full power to exact these penalties.
For the purpose of greater cooperation among the sororities and for the unifying of interests of sorority and non-sorority members, the Panhellenic Council was established at Middlebury in 1932. The Council is composed of two representatives from each sorority, the presidency being held by each chapter in the order of its establishment at Middlebury.

Among its many other functions and duties the organization has complete charge of sorority rushing. To this it must devote most of its time, for each year changes are made in the rushing plans in order to finally make them as nearly perfect as possible. The pledge quota has been raised from seven to eight for each sorority and the open-list system, whereby each sorority knows what girls are being rushed, is in use at the present time. Seeing that everything is run fairly and that no sorority violates its rules is another responsibility of the Council.

In order to encourage individual scholarship, Panhellenic presents an award to the most deserving Sophomore girl each year, judged on a basis of scholarship, extra-curricular activity, and financial need. Also the organization presents a cup to that sorority which has the highest average at the end of each semester.
In the tower of Old Chapel outlined against the Vermont sky there is the suggestion of strength, beauty, age; the strength that comes with organization and unity, beauty that lies deep in the hearts of men, and the mellow age which accompanies wisdom. Thus we believe that our tower is a symbol of student organization, active and honorary, at Middlebury.

Organizations

One Hundred Seventy-one
The college on the hill, 31,000 acres of beautiful forests and mountains, 800 students who didn't know how to take best advantage of this exhilarating environment; these facts provided incentive for the organization of the Mountain Club at Middlebury in 1931. Today it is one of the largest active college organizations in the East, and its president, Robert Anderson '40, is the executive secretary of the Intercollegiate Outing Club. This means that the Middlebury Mountain Club not only arranges week-end fun and relaxation for its 450 members at Middlebury, but it is also the seat of enthusiasms for the great outdoors, a spark behind the open-air activity of some 6,300 week-end mountain climbers in eastern colleges. The aim of the combined clubs are social, recreational, and educational, plus the desire for closer companionship between the colleges. For instance, the Middlebury Club conducted a most successful joint trip with the Outing Club of U. V. M. to Mt. Mansfield. The Dartmouth Outing Club was gleeful about its trip in conjunction with the Club from Smith.

The Mountain Club enjoyed its most successful year at Middlebury this year. There was no lag of enthusiasm with the advancing year, as of former years. Every week the trucks for transportation were crowded to the verge of breaking the springs, so that the main difficulty lay in making room for more and more each week. Favorable weather conditions was no little element in the Mountain Club's success. There is nothing so attractive for hiking as sunny, blue skies, enhanced in the fall by falling leaves and woods crying, bursting with color; in the winter by cool, pure slopes and the tang of pine in the air; in the spring by tiny trickling streams and the awakening shoots of green. And in the spring sugaring-off parties are definitely fun.

The Mountain Club at Middlebury is well organized, and this organization accounts for the ever-increasing popularity and enthusiasm displayed in it by the student body. The membership fee of one dollar and the small charge for the weekly trips enable the Club not only to pay the expenses of the trips, but to also purchase modern hiking equipment for the use of its members.

For those whose interest goes beyond just hiking, tryout for the administrative board of the Mountain Club is open. However, for those who are undecided, let it be known that the tryout period in the Mountain Club is strenuous. The Freshman tryouts must attend lecture courses; their full attendance is required on week-end trips; they must pass a registered course in first aid. The final selection of six men and six women for the Skyline from the temporary Skyline of twenty Sophomores is based on the result of a three-hour examination, taken in December. The governing board is chosen from the permanent Skyline.

English Club

An honorary society organized in 1921 by Professors Cady, Davison, and Skillings, the English Club is limited to thirty-five undergraduates selected for membership on the basis of their interest in English and American literature.

People of note in the field of literature preside over the discussions.

French Club

Giving an added stimulus to the fame of the French School at Middlebury is the French Club, organized in 1925 as a social club to give students a chance to become better acquainted with the French language in all its aspects.

Meetings are held the first Tuesday in every month in Le Château.
Organization of the Spanish Club took place in 1921 when the constitution was first read and adopted.

The purpose of the Club is to supplement Spanish classes in the development of a mastery of the language. Anyone interested in Spanish is welcome to join the Club and attend the many social affairs.

Spanish Club

German Club

Due largely to the efforts of Professor Everett Skillings, the German Club came into existence almost at the same time as the establishment of the German department.

At the present time the Club consists of about thirty members.
A man's choral society organized for the purpose of taking part in certain College activities was the first inklings of a musical club on the Middlebury campus. Later, in the year 1919, a woman's choral group was organized to sing with the men at the various occasions. Shortly after this part of the men separated from this group to form the Men's Glee Club and by 1926 the Women's Glee Club was well under way and competing with the men for popularity.

Realizing the publicity that it would bring the College, the administration arranged for the groups to make several trips each year to present their concerts before large groups of people. In 1925 Middlebury was represented at the Annual Intercollegiate Glee Club contest held in Carnegie Hall in New York. In 1931 the Men's Glee Club won third place in the national contest sponsored by the Intercollegiate Glee Club Association. Also in this year was begun the broadcasting of the concerts and with it came an added stimulus to the organizations.
The A Tempo Club is, at the present time, one of the most up-to-date and growing societies on the Middlebury campus. Organized for the purpose of encouraging musical interest and to bring outside musical artists to the College, the Club has done much to create an interest in fine music in the College. Students with musical ability are given a chance to perform before the A Tempo group and also in the Sunday evening musicales sponsored by the Club.

Only Juniors and Seniors who have had practical and theoretical participation in the Music department may apply for membership, which is elective. This year Geraldine M. Dansereau '40 is president and Hazel M. Phelps '40 is secretary-treasurer. Mrs. H. Ward Bedford is the faculty adviser. Monthly meetings of the Club are held on a designated Sunday evening in the Carnegie room of the music studio.

The A Tempo Club sponsors the Grace Hathaway scholarship, which is a tribute to an interested and enthusiastic friend, whose death was deeply felt by the entire campus last year. Awarded on the basis of musical ability, financial need, and scholastic standing, Helen R. Lawrence '41 was the recipient this year. This enables her to study voice, violin, piano, or organ.
Under the direction of Mr. Alan Carter the College Orchestra has enjoyed an eventful and successful year. Made up of twenty-seven students and augmented for concerts by fifteen members of the Vermont Symphony Orchestra, the group presented several concerts and assisted at other festivities.

Organized in 1910, the College Band is an important organization during the football season and the spring social activities.

With uniform dress of cap and cape and an ever-increasing enrollment, the Band makes many of the out-of-town trips with the football team and it plays on Armistice and Memorial days.
A measuring stick of College debating teams throughout the country is the Intercollegiate Debating Annual, and Middlebury has taken the Annual in its stride for the past four years. This year the M. I. T. debate has been printed in that book.

Men’s Debating

Kulajian, McGarry, R. G. Barclay, W. Small, Connor, Berger, Hadley G. Clark, Drew, Leggett, Coach Perkins, J. Gordon, Hovey

Women’s Debating

During the 1939-1940 scheduled season the Women’s Debating team participated in eighteen debates.

Under the managership of Carol E. Hubbard ’41 six trips were arranged taking the debaters to Boston, St. Lawrence, Maine, New York, and New Hampshire.
THE Blue Key Society came to Middlebury College in 1930 as a purely honorary society, but gradually became burdened with responsibility, until now it is recognized as an active unit of the student government. The very sight of its business-like paddles is conducive to great activity among recalcitrant Freshmen who refuse to be initiated to the Freshman rules and college songs.

More than that, however, the Blue Key conducts athletic rallies. It sells football programs and souvenirs. And oftentimes in the winter a Blue Key member may be seen towering over a group of Freshmen, supervising the removal of snow from the outdoor board track and the hockey rink.

A Blue Key man may generally be distinguished from the common college herd: on duty he wears a blue crew hat, upon which has been embroidered a key of lighter blue. He is an outstanding member of the Senior, Junior, or Sophomore class, chosen on the basis of his extra-curricular activities, scholarship, and character. Tapping for the Blue Key each spring is one of the most anticipated ceremonies of the College year, taking place in chapel during one of the regular morning exercises.
The life and highlights of an honorary society: The "M" Club, organized in 1926 to honor Middlebury's athletic warriors, has led a varied existence since its creation. Like the monster of Frankenstein, once the Student Council had formed this worthy body, it was uncertain exactly what should be done with it. Should the new organization hold formal meetings and elect officers? Should it be invested with certain responsibilities? Should it be entirely honorary?

At last it was decided that since Club members were only those who had been awarded major letters, it would be most fitting if these members financed their own "M" sweaters. So the "M" Club conducted the gym dances for a few years, until inefficiency in their management brought about a lack of funds and consequently a lack of "M" sweaters. So from 1930 until this year the "M" Club's only duty has consisted in posing for the annual KALEIDOSCOPE picture.

It should be more efficient now, because last year, skiing was voted a major sport for the first time, and thus membership in the "M" Club is automatically increased. Formerly membership in the Club was limited to those winning Varsity awards in baseball, basketball, Varsity football, hockey, and track.
The leaders come and go; new bands, all going under the name of Black Panthers, are organized every year, every two years, every four years. If the “Panthers” are fortunate enough to be banded together for three or four years, the result is a very effective, smooth-running dance band, much in demand at Middlebury and nearby colleges.

At the end of each year, it is the custom for the Black Panthers to elect a maestro for the following year, but last year there was no election. Jack Johnson took the responsibility of the band, but was forced to resign because of other activities. Upon this resignation, the “Panthers” were left leaderless, so Ray Squires ‘42 and T. Holmes Moore ‘42 took up the responsibility. Under the leadership of Squires and the versatile trumpeter, Bud Moore, there are indications of a very successful future, especially since the band is composed entirely of Freshmen and Sophomores, who will be playing together for at least two years.

The young band although it has made no efforts to distinguish its style, offers all types of dance music: novelties, “jive” numbers, “sweet” numbers, and waltzes. Their repertoire is made up of the latest dance tunes.
The Saxonian was founded as a literary magazine in 1922. The Saxonian this year is in a critical stage of development. It seems that the lovers of fun and hilarity far outnumber the lovers of good literature.

But there is the possibility that the Saxonian will continue in a modified state, a compromise between the leisurely radicals and the purists, led by the Saxonian’s faculty adviser, Professor Cook. In fact, literary talent in the Freshman Class would seem to indicate that the Saxonian will improve in the future.

The Saxonian board has already conformed to student sentiment this year, however, with several decisive changes. First, Almy Coggeshall’s excellent photography for the cover has clothed the wolf in lamb’s clothing. But should one trouble to open the cover of the Saxonian, he will find less poetry, fewer articles of erudite nature, more amusing art work from the pens of John Hogan, Viola Guthrie, and others, book reviews of popular novels, and some good fiction. As an experiment, Editor John Finley conducted the third issue of the Saxonian as a humor magazine, gathering his material from the results of a college-wide contest.

Any prospective editor who sees three articles published in the magazine becomes a contributing editor.
Campus

Robert F. Pickard

One Hundred Eighty-four

The Campus, its timely campus news, written in vivid, newsy style, is entitled to intercollegiate honors among college newspapers, and it is one publication which students read with avid eyes. It is distinguished by its society columns, its conservative editorials, and by the results of frequent student plebiscites to test the consensus of student opinion on topics of national importance.

This year finds more efficiency on the Campus staff. To insure the financial success of the paper there is closer cooperation between the editorial and advertising staffs. An associate editor has been added to the regular staff to make the burden lighter for all concerned. With a view toward the future of the paper, competition among the try-outs has been made keener; a try-out cannot be considered for the editorship unless, despite the worth of his routine work, he has won two of the editorial-writing contests. More than that, issues of the Campus in charge of aspiring future editors are published now under the critical surveillance of the Senior board members.

Try-outs, both Freshman men and women, come out early in the fall to cover the news. The more competent are promoted to the news staff for the following year.
Ever since the College developed into an institution large enough to merit one, there has been a year book of some form on the Middlebury campus. Adopting the name “Kaleidoscope” and presenting, more or less, the well-rounded picture of a college year, the year book has appeared in almost every form imaginable.

In the last three years the forms have varied radically, one from the other. The 1938 pictorial edition probably was as impressive as any Kaleidoscope has ever been, for it was made up almost entirely of pictures with very little written material. The 1939 edition went to the other extreme, for in direct contrast to its preceding brother it was in an encyclopedic style with long write-ups and a minimum of pictures. Then the 1940 Kaleidoscope hit upon the happy medium between these two, showing, half in pictures and half in writing, a college year with all the activities of undergraduate life.

The 1941 Kaleidoscope theme is different from any of these, for it shows the contrast in the college year of 1800 and of today. Bound in a plain cover of linen finish the book is a pictorial history of the growth of Middlebury. Editor-in-chief of the 1941 edition is Lester W. Ingalls ’41 and his business manager is Emerson G. Johnstone.
Stimulating undergraduate interest in national and international affairs is the main purpose of Women's Forum. With this aim in mind the year's program of discussions, lectures, and activities was planned. Various speakers were obtained throughout the year to lecture to the group. Among them were Professor Robert Davis, who spoke on Portugal; Sherwood Eddy, well-known author and lecturer, who reviewed the foreign situation; and in cooperation with the English Club, Women's Forum sponsored a lecture by Mrs. Dorothy Canfield Fisher, the proceeds of which went to help refugees.

Forum is affiliated with the International Relation Clubs which sponsor International Relation Conferences attended each year by representatives of various colleges. To the 1939 Conference, which was held at New Haven Teacher's College in Connecticut, Margaret B. Whittlesey '41 went as the Middlebury College delegate.

Putting the whole thing on a more democratic basis, this year student panel discussions were stressed.
PRESIDENT MOODY, ever eager to keep Middlebury abreast the times, applied early to Washington for Middlebury’s participation in the government aviation project, and the application was granted almost at once.

However, despite the great enthusiasm displayed by the students, the class was slow in getting started. Since the number of applicants for the course was too large, the better qualified were weeded out and sent to Rutland for physical exams. When the weeding-out process was completed, it was found that two girls would be among the group to take the course. Under the government program Lois Dale was the first woman in the East to solo and the first solo student at Middlebury.

Some of the delay in beginning the new course was caused by preparation of instruction for the ground course. All the Middlebury professors who volunteered to teach various branches of the ground course, including History of Aviation, Meteorology, Theory of Flight, Navigation, Parachutes, Aircraft Power Plants, and Air Regulations, were accepted by the government.

Late in November the course got under way toward its 72 hours of ground work and some 35 hours of flying.
Mortar Board

Founded: 1928
D. Jane Acker
President
Term of office:
May 1939 to May 1940

Dorothy J. Acker

The Banshee Chapter of Mortar Board, national senior women’s honorary society, was established at Middlebury in 1928. Before this there was a local Banshee Society whose members were selected from those women who were most popular and most representative of the College. Before becoming a part of Mortar Board the Banshee Society tapped its members in the middle of a designated night, thus preserving the tradition of the owl. At the present time, tapping takes place in Mead Memorial Chapel at a meeting of Student Union and the members are chosen from the incoming Senior Class on the basis of service, scholarship, and leadership. The main purpose of the society is to uphold and perpetuate College traditions and to assist the Freshman orientation. In the fall Mortar Board holds a tea during which the Freshmen are informed concerning College activities and later the Board takes them to Breadloaf for supper and the presentation of the Mortar Board Pageant. On May Day Freshmen and Sophomore with dean’s list averages are given a breakfast, and a trip to Breadloaf is provided for the Seniors in the spring. Each year the Mortar Board cup is presented to the Sophomore woman who is most representative of her class.

Outstanding activities this year were the revisions of the point system to include new organizations.
Election to the Waubanakee, Senior honorary society, is considered by undergraduate men the most fitting climax to one's career at Middlebury College. The wearing of the society's Gold Tomahawk pin and blue hat embroidered with a red tomahawk can come only after three years of meritorious achievement at College, actually three years of test during which a prospective member must fulfill the high standards of character, scholarship, personality, leadership, and extra-curricular activity required by the society. The tomahawk symbolizes Progress; so attainment to the pin recognizes the progress of a superior individual, not only from the viewpoint of what College had done for him, but also what he has contributed to the College.

As long as there is an individual worthy of the honor, the society is self-perpetuating. The yearly quota is limited to nine members, but singularly, this number has not been reached since 1918. Last spring only four Juniors were tapped to carry on the traditions of the society. The attainments of these four men are diversely manifested in baseball, football, track, hockey, publications, scholarship, social functions, class offices, and College organizations. More than that, they are largely dependent upon their own resources to finance their stay at College.
McCullough Gymnasium

Here in McCullough Gym Middlebury's athletic stalwarts make their start... down in the locker room to turn in their equipment, in the anaesthetic department where Trainer Farrell patches them up, and finally in the shower room to relax. Weights, volleyball nets, handball courts... what college gymnasium is not synonymous with physical education and all forms of college athletics?
In past years Middlebury football teams, attaining their mid-season peaks, had felt that they should have won that first game against Williams. In 1939 Middlebury did win. So wishing to avoid any mid-season regrets, Coaches Beck and Akerstrom pointed for the Williams game this year, just as though it were the Vermont game in the offing. The result was a 7-0 win over the formidable Williams team.

MIDDLEBURY 7—WILLIAMS 0

A blazing sun, ragged blocking and tackling; then that dramatic last minute, as a pass nestled softly in Johnny Mahoney’s hands for the lone touchdown of the game. Jack Johnson, who tossed the winning pass, converted the extra point.

Art Jaques’ early injury prevented a possible Midd field goal in the first quarter, and Middlebury did not threaten again until the second period, when Johnson intercepted Holden’s pass. However, Williams was obdurate on the fourteen-yard stripe. Then Detmar and Morgan battered almost to the Midd goal, but the half saved the situation.

A Purple touchdown was again thwarted in the third period when Crawford scooped up a fumble. Then in the last quarter came the longest run of the game, a deceptive reverse by Detmar of Williams. However, a poor pass from center defeated the Williams attempt for a field goal, the ball being recovered by Tupka of Middlebury. From there Middlebury went to victory in three passes.

TUFTS 13—MIDDLEBURY 2

Tufts avenged last season’s defeat with a 13-2 victory, completely bottling up the Midd backfield.

The first Tufts score climaxed a kicking duel. Two Tufts tackles sprang high in the air... blocked kick, and Lorette, Tufts’ right guard, ran fifteen yards to a touchdown. West kicked the extra point. The teams lined up at the second half to the band’s rendition of the “Beer Barrel Polka,” and shortly after the kick-off Tufts completed two passes, Griffin to Hanabury, for the second score.

Then Middlebury took to the air: passes to Berry and Mahoney brought the Panthers to the Jumbo thirteen-yard line. Here Tufts took the ball, only to be penalized to the two-yard line. Tupka, Panther left end, crashed through to block the kick for a safety and 2 points. In the last quarter Middlebury threatened once more when a long pass, Johnson to Mahoney, dropped the ball on the Tufts ten-yard line. But the Tufts line held, and the game ended. Next year Middlebury will be out for revenge.

UNION 31—MIDDLEBURY 7

Middlebury met Captain Sammy Ham mestrom at Union, but Sammy didn’t stop to pay his respects. He scored twice against the Panthers, paved the way for two more touchdowns, and left the game in favor of an eager substitute. The substitute punched over one more touchdown.

However, the Beckmen were not as impotent as the 31-7 score would seem to indicate. Jack Johnson constantly picked up ten yards through the line, but Midd scoring opportunities were converted into Union tallies by fumbles. The Middlebury score came early in the second half when Johnson passed to Tupka on the five-yard line and then plunged over from there. But Hammestrom retaliated with a long march to a Union score, and in desperation Coach Beck sent in the Panther second team for the last quarter. The game ended in a frantic Midd passing attack, led by Bing Miller.

COLBY 13—MIDDLEBURY 12

A revitalized Panther squad took the field against Colby and completely checked the highly touted Mules, though Colby won 13-12. Sophomore John Zydik averaged four yards each time he started for the Colby goal, and the last quarter saw a shattered Colby line.

Daggett of Colby scored first on a thirty-five yard end sprint. Soon afterwards Zydik kicked out of bounds on... the thirteen-yard line, where Colby fumbled. Wishinski curled around the pigskin for Midd, and Jack Johnson crashed over the goal in two plays.

In the second half an illegal pass penalty placed Colby on the Midd seventeen-yard line, from where Hatch tossed a sneak pass to Daggett. Now with only four minutes to even a 13-6 score, Johnson tried the Johnson-Mahoney touchdown pass. This came after Zydik had romped twenty-three yards. Mahoney snared the pass from two Colby backs for a touchdown. But Ross’ kick went slightly wide and the game ended.

MIDDLEBURY 12—NORWICH 0

Again the Panthers displayed power to down the Norwich Cadets 12-0, sparked this time by Johnson, Mahoney, and Zydik.

Middlebury almost scored in the first quarter of this State Conference game after a march of sixty-six yards. Mahoney galloped twenty-five yards to the Norwich seven-yard line, where Middlebury fumbled. In the second quarter Zydik’s brilliant run to the Cadet five-yard stripe was nullified, but on the next play John Mahoney scooted sixty yards around right end for the first touchdown. The half ended with a sustained Norwich passing attack, but McAllister’s targets were hemmed in by Midd men.

In the second half Bud Berry and Jack Johnson intercepted two passes, paving the way for the second touchdown. It took five downs and a penalty before Middlebury could finally punch over from the Norwich one-yard line. The victory was dear, for both Mahoney and Zydik were injured, Zydik being put out for the rest of the season.

MIDDLEBURY 0—HARTWICK 0

The Panthers went to Oneonta with a small squad seriously handicapped by the loss of Jaques, Mahoney, and Zydik.

Line plunges by Jack Johnson and end runs by Lee Johnson brought Middlebury... within scoring position several times, but failure was a matter of inches. Finally, the blood-thirsty Indians fought to the Panther ten-yard line in the last quarter. The tension was broken when Tupka recovered a Hartwick fumble here. Jack Johnson's long punt from the one-yard line ended the Hartwick threat.

MIDD 19—COAST GUARD 14

Sportsmanship and clean, savage football typified this night game at New London, Conn. A highlight of the game was Captain Stabile's thirty-yard touchdown romp "for Coach Beck's Junior."

Despite embattled resistance by the Guardsmen, Middlebury tallied in both the first and second periods; first Jack Johnson rushed from the fifteen-yard line on a recovered fumble, and in the second quarter Profy blocked the kick which Stabile seized for baby.

But late in the same quarter, Coast Guard blocked Johnson's quick kick on the Midd thirty-yard mark and aerialled down the center for a touchdown. Again in the third quarter Coast Guard tallied, by virtue of a strange spread formation. Trailing by one point, Midd punched over another touchdown in the last quarter. Again it was Jack Johnson.

VERMONT 21—MIDDLEBURY 0

To the Middlebury student, "it just wasn't Middlebury's day." To the Vermonter, "it was just what we've been awaiting for four years." Spasyk, playing with cracked ribs, Taylor and Broutsas drubbed the Panthers 21-0

Catamount Spasyk jaunted seventy yards down the sidelines in the first minute of play for a touchdown. The Panthers took heart when Berry blocked a kick on the Vermont nine-yard line, but the bottom of the pile found Spasyk hugging the ball. Then Taylor of Vermont marched to another score in three runs and a pass to Spasyk. The Midd line tightened up, and a flat pass to Broutsas in the end zone was good for the last tally.
The Frosh harriers did no better than their elders of the Varsity cross country squad. The Frosh opened their season by bowing to the Vermont State Aggies in a clean sweep of the first seven places by the Vermonters. Bill Scott took the next spot for Midd, followed in order by Roberts, Haines, and Egbert, all of Middlebury.

The Frosh Panthers also paralleled the record of their big brothers in the Triangle meet as they also took a third after Dartmouth and McGill. Doucette, Hannon and Waterbury of Dartmouth tied for first in 19:48, while Haines, first of the Middlebury men, ended eighth with 21:07. Egbert finished fourteenth, followed in order by Lutz, Backup, Spear, Wood, MacDonald, Roberts, and Gagnier.

Haines again took an eighth spot in the U. V. M. meet, as the Catamount Cubs registered a perfect win over Middlebury. Mere seconds behind Haines were the Middmen, Scott and Lutz.
From the viewpoint of victories the Panther harriers could not account for a very successful season, losing four out of four meets, one a triangle meet with McGill and Dartmouth. There was not even the consolation of having dropped a meet by a narrow margin or of having exerted the opposition to its utmost, for every meet was lost by nearly a perfect score.

The harriers dropped the opener against the formidable Union team 17-38, as the Union squad captured four out of five places. The winner, Captain Santoro, loped over the Midd course in the jig time of 23:44. The only Panther man to place, Bob Post, finished fourth with a time of 25:34. Ninth place was captured by Schlieder of Middlebury, followed by his teammates, Butler and Captain Mercure tying for tenth, and in order, Hasbrouck, Stanlis, Flanders, Swope, Dave Smith, and Gus Root.

The Panthers lost their next meet to Williams 21-34 over a soggy, boggy four-and-a-half mile course. Middlebury's stellar runner, Bob Post, trailed the winner, Willis of Williams, by a scant two seconds, while Captain Mercure, Schlieder, Butler, and Flanders finished in sixth, seventh, ninth, and tenth positions respectively. The times were 25:14 for Wills and 25:16 for Post.

Then Middlebury placed third behind Dartmouth and McGill in a triangle meet with a 62. The first man in for the Panthers was Post who finished ninth. Mercure trailed in for fourteenth, followed in order by Schlieder, Butler, Stanlis, Flanders, Smith, Hasbrouck, and Swope. Cooke of the Canadian team, finishing first with power to burn, turned in a record-breaking time of 23:25, as compared to Post 24:57.

In the last meet of the season U. V. M. registered a win over the Blue and White harriers by a perfect score. It was a walk away for the Green, as eight Vermonters tied for first place. Post, in spite of a stiff leg, came in ninth, first of the Panthers.

Coach Nash’s eyes brightened when the Panther Cubs trotted out to try their hand at football. There were twenty-eight of them, averaging 170 pounds, and most of them had had previous experience—something unusual in a baby Panther squad. Pre-season scrimmages against the Varsity only added to Coach Nash’s conviction that here was a winning club, for his “tiny” protegés displayed both defensive and offensive strength. But that was before a black cat stalked the path of the Panther and brought injury to several linemen and promising backs.

However, despite the losses of fleet Ed Shea, Dick Morehouse, and Page Ufford, the Blue and White handed Union a 26-6 trouncing in the opening game. The Midd Yearlings blocked the visitors’ first kick, and Porter plunged to a touchdown in four tries. A few minutes later he scored again. Middlebury’s third score came just before the half when Booth took a pass from Porter over his shoulder. So with two conversions by Porter, the score at the half stood 20-0. In the third period Union threatened the Midd goal for the first time, and a spot pass from the six-yard line brought the only Union touchdown. Middlebury retaliated when Colonna drove over from the five-yard stripe. The game ended with Middlebury in possession of the pigskin deep in Union territory.

The next week the Yearlings met their traditional foes from Kimball Union Academy in a game preliminary to the Varsity-Norwich encounter, but came out of the mud with nothing more than a 0-0 draw. At the end of a brief kicking duel between Booth and Stanley of K. U. A. in the first quarter, Booth skirted the end for thirty-five yards, but a poor pass from center on the next play lost the ball in the mud and also lost Middlebury’s scoring opportunity. Three times in the second half the Frosh pushed deep into K. U. A. territory, and almost scored on a pass from Porter to Booth.

In their only outside game the Frosh lost to a powerful New York Military Academy eleven by a 7-6 margin. The Academy drove Middlebury’s opening kick-off to a touchdown within the first four minutes of play, and their spearhead, Hamilton, converted that important extra point. Then, recovering their poise, the Middlebury Yearlings proceeded to completely outplay the soldiers. Middlebury gained the two-yard line—could not score; later reached the half-yard mark, but still could not score. And when Bernard, who was shifted from center to the end berth, stretched his 6 feet 4 for the touchdown pass, the referees declared the touchdown illegal. Then, determined, the baby Panthers scored on a pass from Porter to Booth, and a lateral to Wittlin. Booth’s attempt to convert was blocked.

Again this year the Middlebury Frosh met a strong Vermont team and went down in defeat, though not as ignominious as that of the previous year. The score was 6-0, and Vermont tallied when Swift fell on Boileau’s fumble over the Midd goal line early in the second half. Middlebury had threatened in the first quarter when a quick kick and plunges by Porter and Colonna placed the Panthers in a position for a field goal. However, Porter’s attempt was wide by inches. The game was characterized by the brilliant defensive play of Liehr, Jefts, who was injured, and Poole.

The frosh Panthers should go places in Varsity competition next year, for the stalwarts at the center of the varsity line, Captain Stable, Profy, Jaques, and Vartuli, will be lost by graduation. True, Prukop and Kedmenec, two Sophomore “finds,” and Wishinski, converted from the backfield, will be strong contenders for these pillar positions. However, there is always room for men like big Brad Poole, Jefts, Bob Adsit, and Bernard, the skyscraper of the freshman line. And no longer can Coach Beck of the Varsity complain of a shortage of ends. The regulars, Crawford and Berry, will return and will find stiff competition from Paul Liehr and Red Ericson of the Frosh.

Hockey

As usual, the first hockey game of the year with Dartmouth was cancelled because of poor rink conditions at Hanover, so that action for the Midd icemen was deferred until the vacation trip to Lake Placid, where they participated in the Packer Tournament the 1st, 2nd, and 3rd of January. Middlebury took Williams first in an unexpected upset 2-1, Fred Bates and Captain Wyman netting the Panther goals. Wyman scored unassisted late in the last period. The starting lineup consisted of Wyman, Cobb, Reichert, Ross, Wishinski, and Davis, while in reserve were F. Bates, J. Bates, Youngs, Hawes, Yeomans, Hunter, and Crane.

So it seemed then as though the Panthers would go places in this tournament. However, the next night the squad lost to Colgate 7-3, and Captain Wyman was injured early in the game. Cobb also left the ice with a strained shoulder. Wyman returned only to be injured again in that game, and the following day he was hurt in the Cornell game. Cornell defeated Middlebury in a consolation game, winning 4-2 as Ross and J. Bates scored the only goals for the Panthers.

The Middlebury attack was slowed without the services of Captain Wyman as the sextet lost its fourth encounter at Williamstown 6-1. The Midd defense seems to have collapsed, and it was Williams’ game all the way. The lone Midd tally was scored by Stan Johnson. In the next game after Williams, Colby took Middlebury 10-2, paced by the high-scoring Ray Fortin. When M. I. T. came to Middlebury, the condition of the ice was very poor, and again Middlebury was set back, this time by 5-2. Most of the scoring occurred in the third period, though the puck was bouncing over the rough ice like a tennis ball. The trip to Colgate and Hamilton was hardly more successful; the Red Raiders vanquished the Blue sextet by a 7-4 count, while the Hamilton College icemen turned the trick by a 5-2 score. It seems as though fate had ridden on that trip with Ed Reichert, for he tallied all four goals in the Colgate game and one in the other game. Stan Johnson blazed in the other point for Middlebury.

Hamilton scored three goals while two Midd boys were standing in the penalty box.

From here on, the Panthers picked up momentum for the last five games. Perhaps the week of mid-year exams proved restful; perhaps the cancellation of the Union and Boston College games had something to do with their change for the better; even the fact that some of the stickmen went on probation and some Freshman hockeymen became eligible for Varsity hockey may have been the steadying influence. Not that the team won the rest of its games, but it did play fast hockey and showed marked improvement. The sextet tied Norwich in an unscheduled game on February 8, 5-5. Middlebury led 4-1, but Norwich put on enough pressure in the last period to rate an overtime. Middlebury lost to Northeastern University two days later by a 3-0 score, but the team that took Colby found difficulty in taming Middlebury.

Then Middlebury inaugurated the Winter Carnival of 1940, meeting the University of New Hampshire sextet. The holiday festivities got off on the wrong foot with a 5-2 loss for the Panthers, but this game found Captain Wyman hitting his old stride as he zig-zagged through the Wildcat defense for the two Midd goals.

Showing much improvement, the sextet then took over the Alumni for 3-2 win despite a display of professionalism by the former Midd greats. With this victory under their belts the Panthers traveled to West Point for their last game. They gave out with the best stick performance of the season, although the Kaydets triumphed 4-3 in the overtime. Dixie Davis, in handling forty-seven Army shots, was outstanding defensively for the Panthers. The combination of offensive play by a first line of Reichert, F. Bates, and Wyman with defensive play by the second line of Crane, Youngs, and Hunter kept the Soldiers in a tight spot.
Butler, Capt. Hanson, Rasmussen, Post, Schlieder

Indoor Relay

MIDDLEBURY's indoor relay men chalked up another successful season, despite the continued illness of Captain Hanson, who, nevertheless, remained in the competition. Howie Schlieder was lead-off man, followed by Bob Post running the second lap, Fred Butler in third position, and Hanson the anchor man. In the event of Hanson's sudden withdrawal, Freshman Art Rasmussen accompanied the team as alternate.

The team returned from the Prout Games at the Boston Garden with a second place. Colgate took first place with a team time of 3:35.5, while Middlebury's Captain Hanson held a close lead over Amherst's Bidwell, taking second place with a time of 3:35.8. It was at this time that prospects for the B. A. A. games, to be held two weeks later, looked particularly questionable, for the time chalked up in the mile was three points inferior to that of last year, added to the fact that Hanson's condition threatened to force him from competition at almost any time. 'For a time it seemed doubtful that Middlebury would send a team to Boston again. The one bright spot was the marked improvement shown by Bob Post over last year, as he continued to better his previous times.

But in spite of the poor breaks that dogged the Panther relay team, it did go to Boston, and again it took second place. Before a crowd of 15,000 packing the Boston Garden, the Panthers beat New Hampshire, but lost to Bates. Bates clocked an easy victory as no man finished his lap in over 53 seconds. Middlebury's time of 3:34 bettered the Prout total of 3:35.8, as Hanson more than held up his end. At the same time, Schlieder, Post, and Butler ran their fastest races of the season.

Then the New England Indoor Championships were cancelled, and Coach Brown began to knit his brow in anticipation of next year's season.
Fencing

FENCING, a new sport on the men’s side of the campus, has actually been in existence for three years. It obtained its first lease on life when Marion L. Young of the W. A. A., sponsored fencing as a women’s sport. There were twenty girls in that first class, coached by the Freshmen, Guerard Piffard and Jim Turley, and the next year nine boys reported for the squad. The girls gladly relinquished their hold on that sport, and thus the second year of fencing at Middlebury found a three-man Panther squad competing against Rollins College, considered to have one of the ten best teams in intercollegiate fencing.

This year a raw squad of ten reported for training. The foil up to this time had been the only weapon used, but now the sabre and épée were introduced, and Middlebury could at least boast a full team. In fact, Middlebury could boast remarkable showings in the meets against Dartmouth and Norwich, losing 11-7 to Dartmouth and 5-4 to Norwich, who ranked eighth in the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference last year. In the foils position Captain and Coach Jim Turley was supported by Corbin, Norman Turley, and Richardson. The sabre team consisted of Jim Turley, Corbin, and Haines. Corbin, a three-year man in fencing experience, starred in both contests and is expected to continue in a stellar rôle through the remainder of the season, which includes meets with Fordham, Long Island University, Rollins, and participation in the Eastern Intercollegiate Conference.

The team has indeed developed rapidly. With little or no record, with no facilities, it has been accepted by national fencing circles. It has been recognized by the College as a minor sport. However, without financial aid from the College it has had the initiative to equip itself, to provide its own transportation, to organize and practice with a spirit comparable to that of the Panther football team.

Winter Sports

It was felt that among the student body there was the big year for Middlebury ski enthusiasts. Middlebury had a ski team to be envied by all the colleges in the United States and Canada, and the students wanted to see this boast made good in every newspaper and ski bulletin in the country. The expectations were not quite realized, but the team did not let them down, coming through the season with a fair record.

The Midd skiers took the Lake Placid meet hands down, as Gignac amassed enough points to carry off the Ski Meister Trophy. The Panthers took every first place with a total team score of 492.5. The surprise of the meet was the comparatively strong teams which Harvard and Yale fielded, as they took second and third place respectively. For the Panthers, Ike Townsend started the snowslide...1:05:57.2 for the 12 kilometer cross country. Not to be outdone, Frosh John Gale skied to a victory in the slalom, closely followed by brother Bob. Then Eddie Gignac took first in the downhill and jump.

Dartmouth was present at the next meet, held at the University of New Hampshire, but also present were Maine and New Hampshire, and the Midd skiers finished fourth behind these. However, Gignac was again the best all-around man as he triumphed in the jump and downhill and took a seventh in the slalom. The others who placed for Middlebury were Bob and John Gale, Ira Townsend, and the latest addition to the squad, John Trask. On the same day the second team was sent to represent Middlebury on the icy Thunderbolt Trail at Williams. It was a matter of control that won there, and Middlebury came in sixth behind Harvard, Yale, Williams, Amherst, and Dartmouth's second team. Bob Stuart proved his worth to the Midd team by garnering a third in the cross country and seventh in the jump. Dwight Smith placed tenth in the slalom.

The next week was Dartmouth Carnival time, and the Panthers went full strength, led by Captain Mole Cole. The Midd contingency, including Cole, Gignac, Townsend, Unsworth, the Gale brothers, Dwight Smith, Trask, and Stuart, failed to do better than sixth against the stiff competition offered by Halsey and Rideout of Dartmouth, Bob Townsend of McGill, and Paul Townsend of New Hampshire.

Dartmouth continued to dominate college skiing, taking the Midd Ski Carnival the next week, leading New Hampshire by only five points. Middlebury was third, pushing Dartmouth and New Hampshire to the limit. Middlebury seemed to have little trouble in taking first, second, and thirds in the events, but just lacked the power to place in the other spots so necessary for team victory. Bob Gale finished second in the slalom, with Ira Townsend fourth. Townsend also came in early from the cross-country run for a third spot, while Unsworth was the next Middlebury man, in tenth position. Gignac continued his fine record in the jump, an undisputed first.

Boasting one of the finest teams in years, Dartmouth swept all events to win the I. S. U. meet at Northfield, Vt., even copping the jump as Eddie Gignac lost his title to Roger Simpter. The Middlebury team, which finished in third position last year, dropped into fourth place behind Dartmouth, McGill, and New Hampshire. The only Midd showing of any note was Bob Gale's seventh in the slalom, Townsend's fourth in the cross country, and a second in the jump by Gignac.

The Panther ski team closed its season with a neighborly little meet for the Vermont State Ski title, but unfortunately for Middlebury, the competition did not include jumping. The Panthers trailed Norwich by 5 points as John Gale won the downhill over the treacherous Nose-dive course for Midd's lone first place. John came in only 11 seconds behind the trail record. Middlebury was beset with hard luck in the slalom: one disqualification, four single penalties, and five falls. However, Ike Townsend managed to salvage a second place in this and also collected a second in the langlauf, but as the results proved, firsts and seconds alone cannot win a meet.
Basketball

The Panther quintet lost its opener of the season to Tufts 31-27 on December 8. It was one of those close, hard-fought games, with Midd leading 27-17 as only a matter of several minutes remained until the final gun. Desperate, the Jumbos regained possession of the ball when the Panthers backed down the floor trying to “freeze” it. Jenkins, Tufts forward, flipped the winning baskets. Mahoney, Krauszer, and Eriksson starred for Middlebury with 7, 8, and 9 points respectively.

Just before the Christmas holidays Midd’s quintet went to the home courts of Massachusetts State and Williams. The victory over Massachusetts State by a 35-25 score was marred by the fact that the Sophomore ace, Johnny Zydiik, suffered a recurrence of his old football injury and was forced out for the remainder of the season. Against Williams the Panthers did not fare so well, losing 44-34. Big Nick Krauzer was “on” that night to score half of Middlebury’s points, so that the Panthers had the lead at the half. However, the Purple reserves wore out the Panther opposition in the second frame.

Then Middlebury traveled up-state to oppose U. V. M., but inspired, the Cata-mounts clawed the Blue and White for a 56-27 win. And, oddly enough, the Panthers had been rated an even chance to win. The Midd veterans did not perform up to scratch, while the second team of Jack Nugent, Bing Miller, Dave Emmons, Phil Rifenberg, and Bill Desmond came through with a scrappy performance.

In the next state contest Norwich defeated Middlebury 39-31 just after the Panther had taken an easy game from Union 43-30. It was a bitter blow, especially since the game was marked by a tie score at the half, both Norwich and Middlebury having a total of 13 points. The Cadets had fire and energy to burn in the last half, and their fast breaks on a large court won the contest. Nugent spent an excellent evening tying up the Norwich offense.

Then strengthened by the addition of first-year men and transfers, Adsit, Lap-ham, Ouimette, and Neidhart, the Panther squad awaited the highly touted Springfield five, rated among the best in the country. Alternating two equally good line-ups, Springfield swamped the Panthers 59-25. Talbott and Krauszer turned in good performances, while Captain Schragle played his usual high brand of basketball at guard. Springfield was just too good, which cannot be admitted of any other five which the Panthers played.

The quintet went to M. I. T. minus the services of their stalwart center, Krauszer, who was out with a trick knee, and lost to the Engineers 43-30. The Midd hoopsters were unable to find the range until the game was nearly over. Adsit led the Panther contingent by sinking four baskets.

In a Potato League game at St. Michael's Middlebury lost 49-30 after turning in a sparkling first half. During the half the Midd line-up was revamped, and results showed that someone was missing. The Mikemen settled for 28 points in the second go as "Pro" Herbert and Steve Guter sank baskets from all over the floor. The sharpshooters for Middlebury were Neidhart, who looped three baskets in as many minutes, and Mahoney.

Neidhart continued this pace in the next game to shore honors with big Nick Krauszer as the Panthers took Norwich 51-31. The two Middmen scored 16 points each. Captain Schragle and his Blue and White teammates never gave the Horsemen a chance to get started. Togo Eriksson was hot that night also, tossing in five baskets. Mahoney followed with 6 points, Adsit with 2, and Nugent with 1 point. For the first time this season the Midd quintet displayed the fine teamwork and passing of which they were capable. The Norwich offense evolved around Mason and Durkey.

The last game of the year, played at McCullough Gymnasium, was nip and tuck; St. Michael's won out 36-35.
Track

Though the track team had a rather poor campaign, the season was highlighted by several Freshman finds, Bill Wood in the high hurdles, John Zydik in the javelin throw and pole vault, Phil Rifenberg in the broad jump, and Howie Schlieder in the dashes.

The Panthers bowed to Wesleyan in their first encounter 95-39, as Wesleyan made a clean sweep of the dashes and weight events. Diminutive Paul Cushman took the 880 run for the Blue and White with the fast time of 2:05.4, while Bob Post placed second in the grueling two-mile event. The long-legged Freshman, Bill Wood, stretched out to take the 120-yard high hurdles in 16.1 seconds, but had to be content with a third in the 220-yard low hurdles. Middlebury rated a first and second in the javelin throw through the brawn of Zydik and Profy, a first in the pole vault by virtue of Barin the high jump with 5 feet 8 inches, but then R. P. I. went on to win the meet 79-47.

In the first home meet of the season several records were almost shattered, as Boston University defeated Middlebury 73½-61½. John Zydik nearly realized his ambition in the javelin throw when he threw the spear 178 feet 6 inches, falling just a few feet short of the record. Royce Tabor finally clicked, tying the College record for the high jump with 5 feet 10¼ inches. All the Middmen turned in their best records to date: Post, Paul Cushman, and Bob Cushman performed yeoman work in the distance events; Thompson, Hanson, and Brown excelled in the dashes, while Profy and Davis carried their end of the weight events.

Middlebury, handicapped by injury and ineligibility, fell into seventh place in the E. I. C. A. A., one-fifth of a point ahead of Massachusetts State's 5 point last. The one-fifth of a point dropped off the pole of Johnny Trask as he lifted himself 11 feet for a four place tie for fourth. It was one of the fastest competitions in recent years, with three records being broken and one tied. Connecticut State won the meet with 44½ points, two more than Tufts could collect. The best showings of the day by the Panthers were those of Paul Cushman, who ran second to Rice of Connecticut State in a 2:01 half mile, and Zeph Davis in the discus.

With the Freshmen participating, Midd was given the nod over U. V. M. However, taking eight of fifteen events, the Catamounts subdued the Panthers 61-57. This meet saw the successful début of Pat Vartuli in the shot put, as Middlebury captured a first in that event for the first time during the season. Bursaw took the broad jump, while the transfer, Tabor, excelled for the Blue and White in the high jump. Other Panther winners were Post in the mile, Paul Cushman in the half mile, and Zydik in the javelin.
Chapman, Howard, Co-captain R. Petrizzi, R. Davis, Co-captain Cashman, Mahar, Mgr. Jewett

Golf

Since the golf match with Dartmouth College was cancelled, the six men led by Don Chapman in number one position, Co-Captain Cashman in second, Co-Captain Petrizzi in third, Dixie Davis fourth, Roger Howard fifth, and Lang Mahar sixth, swung through their initial match with Williams under ideal spring conditions. Petrizzi and Davis each won one point in the best ball match. The number one man for Williams, former Wisconsin State champ, shot a sparkling seventy, three under par, and Williams took the match 8-1.

The next day the team traveled to Colgate, where the Red Raiders' four-man team defeated Middlebury 4½-1½. Again Davis and Petrizzi accounted for the only Panther points. Colgate's captain was the individual low scorer with a 72.

The next match with the Rutland Country Club was postponed until the end of the season, and so the team was idle until Junior Week, when it met Clarkson on the home links. Here the golf team broke its losing streak by defeating the visitors 4½-2½. Chapman in number one spot lost his individual match, but his partner, Cashman, came through so that together they tied for the best ball. Petrizzi and Davis won both of their individual matches and tallied three of the Panther's four and one-half points.

The following day the Horsemen from Norwich trotted out to the Middlebury fairways, and the Panthers used a four-man team to defeat the Norwich golfers 4½-1½. Again Don Chapman held the number one position, while Co-Captains Cashman and Petrizzi occupied number two and three, and Dixie Davis was in number four spot. Chapman and Davis tied for the lowest scores of the day with a 76 each, and Chapman and Cashman together tied for the best ball.

On May 20 the Midd golfers went to Rutland for their last match of the season.
Dinghy

A relatively new sport has come into existence on the Middlebury campus—or rather, off the campus—a sport called dinghy racing. The boys on the team do not represent Middlebury on the record, although they are recognized by the College. It is an off-the-record sport in that it does not claim to be organized and the Panther team is not a member of the Intercollegiate Yacht Racing Association, playing the part of lone wolf at the regattas which they attend. The team was the foster child of “Skipper” Davis and Bob Crane, lovers of the white spray, and in glowing words they term dinghy racing “a growing sport,” in as much as they lack only financial backing and facilities for sailing at Middlebury.

For a new and inexperienced organization, the Midd dinghy team has performed remarkably well in competition with long-established college teams which can boast every facility, including possession of dinghies. The college which sponsors a regatta must supply the dinghies, and thus Middlebury has fared well on the receiving line. At its first regatta in early spring of last year at Brown University, Middlebury was represented by Crane, Files, Al Root, Davis, and Whitlock, and despite several disqualifications succeeded in displacing Boston College and A.I.C. During the same week-end Mott, Purdy, and Unsworth brought the Panther to the Dartmouth Regatta at Hanover, only to find the ice four inches thick on the lake.

This fall, a four man crew of Unsworth, Davis, Files, and Crane drove to Boston for the M.I.T. Regatta. The sky was clear, but the wind was gusty, and the Crane dinghy capsized—twice. However, it came back strong in the last race to place second in a field of twelve. Plans for the near future evolve first on the next Brown Regatta and then on the issuance of a challenge to the women of Vassar College.

Two Hundred Eleven
The Middlebury tennis team completed one of the most successful seasons in many years, losing only two of the eleven matches on their schedule. During the opener against Suffolk University only five matches were played as Middlebury won 4-1. Captain O'Keefe lost to Rich of Suffolk after three sets 6-4, 2-6, 7-5. McDowell polished off Gautreau 6-1, 6-2, and Alexander took Dunphy 6-3, 6-2. Middlebury also took the doubles.

The match against Norwich proved to be an easy 9-0 victory for Midd, with no match going to three sets. O'Keefe, Crawford, McDowell, Alexander, Maxwell, and Sprague all contributed wins.

New York State Teachers did not even fare as well as Norwich, again no match going to three sets, and another 9-0 victory was chalked up for the Midd team. The closest match was the number three doubles as Latham and Carr outdrove Rand and Smith 8-6, 7-5. Next week the netmen traveled to New York State Teachers College for a return match, and the results were the same, a 9-0 victory for the Panthers. However, O'Keefe's match with Frament went to three sets, the score being 6-2, 0-6, 6-3.

From there the Panther netmen proceeded to Bard College and strafed the New Yorkers 9-0. The Panther team continued undefeated to win three games during Junior Week competition. On Thursday U. V. M. succumbed to the Midd racquets by a 7-2 score. Maxwell's match went to three sets as he beat Simpson 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

On Friday Midd coasted to an 8-1 victory over St. Michael's as Sprague lost a hard-fought battle to Healy 3-6, 6-4, 6-3. Middlebury's victory over R. P. I. on Saturday was an 8-1 win, even though four of the matches went to three sets. Midd tasted defeat on the last trip of the season, losing to Colgate 9-0, tying St. Lawrence 3-3, and being edged out by Union 5-4.
The Athletic Council of Middlebury College has voted a major letter to the manager of intramural sports, but despite this fact, it has been the general policy during the last few years to underestimate the importance of intramural sports in the development of the individual.

Chi Psi, sparked by Talbott and Blackmore, took a close game from Delta Upsilon to emerge victorious in touch football, while Delta Kappa Epsilon through the efforts of Mott and Desmond was the runner-up. Then Chi Psi trounced Delta Kappa Epsilon in golf, when Reichert, Butler, and Cobb outputted and outdrove Hubbard, Halligan and Cosgrove. The newcomer to intramural sport, Sigma Alpha, tied for third with Sigma Phi Epsilon in this tournament.

When basketball rolled around, the fraternities were divided into an American and a National League, and a World Series playoff was held between the American League winners, Delta Kappa Epsilon, and the Nationals, Kappa Delta Rho. The high scorers of the tournament were Davis (ΔKE), Johnson (ΣΦE), Easton (ΚΔP), and Wright (ΚΔP). Chi Psi again came through for wins in the volleyball tournament, with Delta Upsilon and Alpha Sigma Phi the runner-ups, and repeated in the hockey league. Tennis, an individual sport, saw the neutrals come into their own for the first time this year as Curt McDowell won in straight sets over Tom MacDonald.
Baseball

The Panther baseball season was curtailed by poor weather conditions throughout, and the early practice sessions had to be held in the gym. Rain cancelled two games on the already abbreviated schedule so that the result was a short ten-game season, during which the Panthers lost nine and won the other, thus clinching cellar honors in the Potato League.

The Panther nine opened against the big guns of Colgate at Hamilton, where Captain Gustafson was blasted from the mound in the early innings of the game. Relief hurler Kenneson was unable to halt the Raider attack, and pitchers Van Gaasbeck and Bertuzzi were held in leash for the Williams game the following day. As the 29-0 score would seem to indicate, Middlebury had no attack and could not cope with the wily Colgate screwball artist, George Sisler, Jr.

The next day the nine hustled to Williamstown, but were taken by the Purple to the tune of 8-3. Yet definite improvement was shown at the bat as Jaques pounded in two runs with a double. Van Gaasbeck limited the Purple to five hits in four innings, but was replaced by Gustafson in the sixth. Infield errors at crucial times lost the game for Middlebury more than anything else.

On April 25 the Panthers met St. Michael's for the initial State League game and the first game on the Midd diamond. A two-run rally by the Panthers sent the game into extra innings, but two twelfth-inning singles gave St. Michael's a 4-3 win. Both Gustafson and Van Gaasbeck pitched good ball, fanning twelve and only walking two over the whole route. Gus weakened in the twelfth, giving up singles to Herbert and Ryan which clinched the game.

Then after several days of rain St. Lawrence University came to Middlebury to win a close and spirited contest by an 8-7 score, as the Middmen went on their first batting spree with sixteen hits. Bertuzzi slammed a home run with two men on in the fifth, and later "Sike" Arnold came through with a triple. Prukop, Yeomans, and Jaques boosted their batting averages with singles. However, in the first half of the ninth inning St. Lawrence pushed the winning run across the plate. So the Panthers just tightened their belts and looked hungrily to the next game. Sure enough, Lowell Textile Institute became their first victims the following day as Middlebury won 14-6, Bertuzzi pitching a grand game. Middlebury averaged one to two runs an inning, while Jaques, Prukop, Bertuzzi, and clean-up man, Yeomans, continued to swing the heavy bats.

Thus by the time of the first Vermont game, it seemed as though Middlebury had hit her stride, but unfortunately, U. V. M. tripped her up with 22-4 score as the Green collected nineteen hits, including a homer in the first frame by Bud Kimball. Prukop’s double and Bertuzzi’s triple accounted for three of Middlebury’s runs, while a pass in the ninth brought another run. The next week, Junior Week, the Panthers met the Vermont nine again, as Kimball shut-out Middlebury 4-0. An early Midd rally foundered as three men died on base, and there was no score until the seventh inning. Then Vermont nicked Gustafson for a run in the seventh and three during the eighth frame to sew up the game.

Two days later Van Gaasbeck pitched against Norwich in the last home game of the season, but despite three-baggers by Kirk, Bertuzzi, and Yeomans, he walked out of the box with the verdict 9-6 against him. The score was tied at 3 all until the fifth, and in the seventh Norwich sewed up the game with a three-run spurt.

Once again Middlebury took the field against St. Michael’s, Bertuzzi and Van Gaasbeck pitching. Steffens, allowing only six scattered hits, set the Nashmen back by an 8-2 score. Middlebury evened the score in the fourth as Hawes slammed out a triple. Middlebury went to town again in the fifth with a triple, but the man was left on base as D’Errico fanned. After that it was all St. Michael’s.

Middlebury dropped her last encounter to Norwich, the Cadets pounding out a 17-8 win.
“W. A. A. members please remain after chapel”—the terse notice may augur several thumping hearts, as Middlebury’s sportswomen advance to receive hard-won awards; it may foretell a grand display of the “Old Pan-Hell Spirit,” as elections arrive; or it may give evidence on the part of its canny Council of many a heated debate as to revisions and improvements which must be presented to the membership body as a whole, for final decision. Thus in one small line may be hinted the entire gamut of the functions of the Women’s Athletic Association of Middlebury, busily engaged in “promoting and supervising the athletic activities of the Women’s College,” which is its main purpose in life. Needless to say, it is not difficult to “stimulate interest in all forms of physical exercise,” as the turnouts in all sports indicate. Every Middlebury woman is eligible for membership; she needs only to suggest her desire by displaying her interest, and seventy-five cents. She may then take part in as many W. A. A. activities as she wishes, including skiing, with instructions donated to the eager novice. Furthermore, in addition to employing her vocal chords in cheering for her class hockey, volleyball, or soccer team, she is entitled to have her voice in the government of the organization, which is chiefly carried on through the W. A. A. Council.
With Miss Rosevear as faculty adviser, this executive body, comprised of the four officers of W. A. A., the managers of all the sports, the chairman of the Cabin Council, and the Freshman representative, is responsible for the success of the athletic year. The manager of each sport assumes complete control of her activity; arranges schedules for games and practices, tournaments and appoints scorekeepers, referees, and "stop-watchers." The Council, also, fulfills its duties in regard to designating "Playdays" with other colleges, but is often baffled by an inclement "Weatherman," who evidently disapproves the theory that "Woman's place is in the loam." Such was the termination of our date with the University of Vermont this fall; our "hockey-picnic-supper" made a good correspondence for all concerned!

In addition to the traditional jackets, awarded to those girls who have attained 1,000 points, coveted prize of the year is the W. A. A. Banner, which goes to the class most deserving of it, according to the number of championships it has won, the percentage of people "out" for each sport, the number of "All-Midd-ers" counted in its ranks, the winners in tournaments for individuals, and its general all-round sportsmanship.

To the memory of Marion L. Young was erected the "W. A. A. Cabin," perched half-way up a mountain in between East Middlebury, Lincoln, and northeast Ripton. Having received its official christening in the so-called “spring” of 1939, it opened hospitable doors frequently this fall, to crowds of happy “Escapists.” According to Jane Acker, official charterer of the Cabin’s course this year, it has been occupied on the average of one out of every three week-ends. Whether stormy or shiny, Cabin week-enders are never disappointed. A huge fireplace is the main attraction of the living room, until time for “mess,” which is served on spacious tables and benches of the rustic order. Fifteen may be accommodated with ease, while plans are afoot to increase the present sleeping facilities to include the housing of twenty-five. Most remarkable is the Cabin’s plumbing system, which, however, works on the “W. P. A. system” in winter. A running brook supplies convenient refrigeration for the month of June. The Cabin has gained favor with faculty and mixed parties, as well as purely “hen.” For chaperonage, prospective pioneers enlist the willing aid of a waiting list of Seniors, two of whom assume charge of each trip.

Taking full advantage of the crisp, tangy fall air are Middlebury’s hockey players, who sprint about in shin-guards and play-suits from September until the first blizzard, with enthusiastic cries of “Sticks down on this, now!" and "Rush 'em, Defense!" Fierce and long is the annual tussle for the championship, won this year by the "Staid Old Seniors," captained by Elizabeth Garrett. Under the management of Jo Dorchester, and the coaching of Miss Colgan, the teams concluded a successful season, having improved both "stick-work" and team-work, not to mention immunity to frost-bite.

Though soccer this year was in its infancy at Midd, the eager patrons of the sport derived a great "kick" out of it, and prophesy greater things for next year. The two teams, with Seniors rubbing elbows—or ankles—with Freshmen, staged its tournament, the championship going to the winner of two out of three games. As the teams endured constant revision, everybody won! Patty May, soccer manager, has high hopes for a great increase in turn-outs for the years to come.

Not content with capturing the hockey honors, the Seniors added the volleyball championship to their laurels, after a long exciting season. Ruth Hardy, manager, arranged the tournament schedule in accordance with Choir practices and Campus assignments. Teams varied in size, the Freshmen numbering two full teams, plus substitutes. Needless to say, to each participant was served full measure of fun, frolic and fellowship.

Basketball

Two Hundred Nineteen
As hockey is the primary sport of the fall, the most important team sport of the W. A. A. winter season is basketball. The gym is the silent observer of secret plays and passes worked out during practices. If tricky plays help to win, then the Junior team claims the cup for ingenuity as they emerged the victors of the closely contested tournament, with no defeats to mar their record. The Freshmen and Sophomores won second and third places, respectively. Edith Grimm in the capacity of manager finally succeeded in bringing the tournament to a close after numerous interruptions caused by mid-year's and Winter Carnival.

The first fall of snow found the gay colors of the Middlebury co-eds emerging from their summer home of mothballs to enhance the beauty of the mountain campus. Under the able tutelage of our young Swiss coach, Hans Sarbach, over 100 women turned out for lessons. Officially the women sported their first women's team to represent Midd. Besides participating in our own Carnival, the team also went to Stowe, University of New Hampshire and McGill. The faithful work of Deane Kent, who coached this outfit, cannot pass unnoticed.

When the snow begins to melt, and the women skiers no longer dot the hills of Middlebury, the badminton season comes to the forefront. Under the managership of Carol Hubbard ’41, a warmly contested tournament was run off, the winner coveting the silver cup that is awarded annually to the victor. As further enticement, the mixed doubles tournament held with the top ranking players created much interest. Just as the mixed volleyball games drew much attraction, so this badminton tournament was met with much enthusiasm.

Modern dance became truly modernized when the Freshmen and Sophomores created their own dances in their gym classes. Not a class for interpretative dancing only, the members were taught the fundamentals of impressionistic dancing. The grand climax was a joint recital presented April 18. Perhaps, you have noticed the character girls of 1942 limping around as if they had rheumatism; but, no, they have just been trying the manly art of bowling. Others complain of a sore hand. That results from too much concentration on the game of handball. All these activities are part of the required physical education program.

In the spring “a young man’s fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love.” So does a Midd girl's, but she is busy with other thoughts as well. As soon as the late winter slush has melted the pilgrim in her longs to go on pilgrimage. So she gets out her bike and goes pumping out the Burlington road, coasting down little hills and walking up big ones.
THE SOCIAL YEAR

In this section:

On Friday, October 27, 300 alumni returned to Middlebury for the annual Homecoming week-end this year, featuring a 12-0 victory over the Norwich Cadets at Porter Field on Saturday afternoon.

The program started with a rally in the McCullough Gymnasium on Friday evening when a capacity crowd filled the building in anticipation of the Norwich game. Following the rally a large bonfire was lighted in Porter Field where the crowd prayed for victory and cheered the team on.

On Saturday morning there were open classes for the alumni, a Frosh game with K. U. A., and a meeting of the Alumni Council at the Middlebury Inn. The Freshmen held K. U. A. to a scoreless tie, while in the Varsity game in the afternoon the Middlebury eleven trounced the Horsemens 12-0, Mahoney starring for the Panthers. After the game the alumni gathered at President Moody's house for an informal tea, renewed acquaintances and met the faculty. For the undergraduates, coffee and doughnuts were served in Forest recreation room. Fraternities held open house to visitors for the tea dances which they held following the game. Buffet suppers were served for returning alumni and visitors as well as undergraduate couples.

The final event of the week-end was the informal dance held in the gym. Many couples danced to the music of the New Vermonters Band from the University of Vermont as Homecoming drew to a close.

Homecoming is an annual event of the College year, sponsored by the Alumni offices with the cooperation of other College organizations.

Two Hundred Twenty-seven
Winter Carnival

Combining social activities with athletics and a genuine search for good, clean fun in a break from the binding reigns of a quest for knowledge, the 1940 Middlebury College Winter Carnival hit a new high in holiday week-ends and was, according to Frank Elkins of the New York Times, "...undoubtedly the best meet since the beginning of the Carnival in 1934, when snowshoeing was the main event."

Per tradition, the opening of the Carnival took place with the coronation exercises which were held in Mead Memorial Chapel on Thursday evening. Robert C. Anderson '40 was crowned Carnival King and his Queen was Lois D. Gillette '40. This ceremony took place against a background of organ music in the midst of appropriate decorations representing winter sports. The couple were crowned by President Moody.

Two Hundred Twenty-nine
Winter Carnival

On this same evening, following the coronation, a dance was held in the Middlebury Inn in place of the Carnival Ball which was postponed until Friday night. This postponement was caused by the inability of Tommy Reynolds' Orchestra to get away from snow-bound Boston and make the long trip. His contract was cancelled and Dol Brisette and his orchestra were engaged to play at the ball.

This ball was held on Friday night after the annual Carnival musical play, this year in the form of "The Sorcerer," which was presented at the local high school gymnasium under the direction and supervision of Professor V. Spencer Goodreds. With an all-student caste, this Gilbert and Sullivan opera was amusing and entertaining and was carried off very well midst the applause of a large audience. The Carnival Ball which followed this on Friday evening, was the biggest social event of the week-end and was one of the most formal dances of the year. The gymnasium was decorated with black and white streamers, and penguins to complete the winter picture, and the couples danced from nine until two the following morning. Frederick G. Butler '41 was chairman of the dance and assisting him were many student committees.

Getting around to the sports side of the Winter Carnival, Middlebury placed third to Dartmouth and New Hampshire in the skiing events. In the downhill, held at Breadloaf, New Hampshire won and Gignac, first Middlebury man, got an eighth. Dartmouth won the slalom, also held at Breadloaf, and Middlebury finished second, fourth, and seventh. Middlebury got a fourth in the langlauf which was held here at the College and which Dartmouth won. The jumping event, held on Chipman hill, was won by Ed Gignac for Middlebury.

Also in the line of sports, the Panther hockey squad conquered the Alumni by a score of 3-2.

All the abandon and gaiety of a riotous Carnival week-end came to a peak at the Klondike Rush which was held in the gymnasium on Saturday night. The Black Panthers provided music for this, the most informal dance of the year, and the gym was gaily decorated to lend the right atmosphere. Commonly referred to as "The Brawl" the dance is for pure fun.
Rustic, unsophisticated, and pervaded with a spirit of abandon, the Klondike Rush is truthfully a fitting climax for such a week-end, for it catches the true Carnival spirit and excitement and atmosphere. The co-chairmen of this event, William R. Markland '41 and Caroline Butts '41 arranged the dance and procured the chaperons and the orchestra.

As a sort of anti-climax, on Sunday, a ski-hike was run to the snow-covered slopes of Breadloaf Mountain and good skiing was enjoyed by those who wished to indulge in such a precarious sport after such a vigorous week-end. With this event the Carnival was over for another year. The alumni returned home and the students picked up their books once more to hit the long trail.

And so once more the annual Winter Carnival was run off with the precision which comes about only through organized planning and a good lot of hard work. Handled entirely by the undergraduates under the supervision of the Middlebury College Mountain Club, the Carnival was indeed a democratic affair . . . . for the students, by the students, and of the students . . . . a lot of fun, a lot of work, and long-lasting, pleasant memories.

Two Hundred Thirty-one
Scullions' Ball

The 1940 Scullions' Ball was held in Hepburn Social Hall on February 2 and was the first formal of the new year. Chairman of the event, Harold I. Wyman '40, and co-chairmen John C. Johnson '41 and Webster K. Whiting '42 were in charge of the affair which was run off with great success.

The color scheme of the dance was blue and white, with which the Social Hall was decorated, and the Black Panthers, in their rejuvenated form, provided the music for the couples. A banquet was served in the early part of the evening and formal dancing started about 8:30, lasting until midnight.

The Scullions' Ball is an annual dance held for and run by those undergraduates who have waited on table in Commons.

Ladies-in-Waiting Ball

Charlotte E. Gilbert '41 was chosen as chairman of the 1940 Ladies-in-waiting Ball, held this year in Forest Recreation Hall on March 9. Helping Miss Gilbert as heads of committees were: Chaperons, E. Barbara Lown '41; Orchestra, Jessie W. Matthew '41; Programs, Virginia Brooks '41; Place Cards, Ruth O. Raymond '40; and Decorations, Sally O. Martenis '41.

At 7 p.m. a banquet was served in Forest Dining Hall with a special program to entertain the guests and at 8:30 p.m. formal dancing began in the recreation room and continued until midnight.

The Ladies-in-waiting Ball is the sister counterpart of the Scullions' Ball, being held only for girls who have waited on table in the women's dormitories.

Two Hundred Thirty-three
The biggest week-end in the spring of the Middlebury College student year is Junior Week, which is usually held sometime in May. Last year it was held about May 13 and was a complete success as one of the best social events of the year.

The first affair was the play, “Maria Marten or The Murder in the Red Barn,” which was presented by Professor V. Spencer Goodreds. This production was a revival of the early melodrama and preserved the spirit of the old play.

For the tea dance, which was held in the Middlebury Inn, the re-vamped Black Panthers played.
The big event of the festival was, of course, the Junior Prom, which proved to be one of the best formal dances of the year. In spring formals the couples danced to the music of Les Brown and his Duke Blue Devils in a gymnasium transformed into a terrace garden with the orchestra completely enclosed in a picket fenced area on the stage. The chaperons’ corner was transfigured into a rose arbor and the walls of the gym were covered with false flowers, giving the right atmosphere to the dance. This dance brought to a conclusion the social affairs of the week.
With Commencement and Senior Week the fiscal college year at Middlebury is brought to a close and activities are no more until the advent of summer school.

The 1939 Commencement was held from June 8 to June 12, and the festivals were all in accordance with traditions of the College.

The Senior Ball was held on June 8 in the Middlebury Inn. Jack Harrington and his orchestra, his “New Englanders,” provided the music for this, the last social event of the year. A good crowd was in attendance at the beautifully decorated Inn.

“Room Service,” with an all-student cast and under the direction of Professor V. Spencer Goodreds, was presented at the Playhouse on two different nights and met with unheralded success.
Saturday, June 10, was crowded with events. There was a Trustees’ meeting, Class Day exercises, Alumni Council, Barbecue, Field Follies, a reception on the lawn of President Moody’s home, class reunion dinners, and the annual alumni informal dance in the gym.

The next day, Sunday, was just as crowded with an alumnae breakfast, Baccalaureate service in Mead Chapel, Twilight musicale, step singing, Phi Beta Kappa banquet, informal readings in the Abernethy Library, and fraternity reunions.

On Monday, June 12, Commencement exercises were held in Mead Memorial Chapel, the speaker of the day being President Vannevar Bush. With this the year was closed and Middlebury’s traditional halls were vacant once more.
Acknowledgment

ALTHOUGH a large part of the responsibility and labor in the production of this volume has rested in the hands of the immediate staff, there are those to whom we owe a special debt of gratitude for their assistance:

To a faithful group of tryouts who have toiled arduously during many hours in the performance of their assigned tasks.

To Mr. A. W. Gove and his staff for excellence in photographic services.

To Mr. Milton L. Fitch, Miss Dorothy Cooper and the staff of the Howard-Wesson Company for invaluable assistance in designing and engraving.

To Mr. Harry M. Blodgett and the staff of the Free Press Printing Company for expert advice and service in all phases of production.

To Dr. John H. Patterson for administrative advice and encouragement.

To Mr. Theodore H. Zaremba for assistance in solving the financial and business problems of the volume.

To the Office of the College Editor—W. Storrs Lee, Mrs. Lorraine G. Warner, Miss Helen Dukett, Miss Ramona Ford and Mr. John Street for considerable technical advice and cooperation.

It's Power That Makes Things Hum in the Busy Factories of the Communities We Serve

The power that keeps industrial activities going is our responsibility, and we are well aware that it is an important one. We know that there must be no possibility of failure of the electric energy that keeps things humming. That there must at all times be an adequate supply for every purpose, plus reserve power for unusual demands. We know that we must also plan for increased needs in the future.

Business, industry, farms and homes can have complete confidence that we will be able to fulfill their every power requirement, to meet every demand of growth and development. The services of our engineers are available to all of our customers who wish advice on power problems, or in planning for expansion that will result in the increased use of electric power. We are here to supply every electrical need of the territory we serve.
